SCOTTY TELLS CITY COUNCIL TO FIX SOCKS

Gas By-law Makes Joke Of "Friendly City" Slogan

"City councilmen who ratified the gasoline by-law ought to go home and mend socks, and leave municipal government to men who don't make a joke of Edmonton's slogan, 'The Friendly City'," said William Brockett, boss of Scotty's Garage on his release from jail Sunday night where he served a two day term for selling gasoline to medical men and motorists in cases of emergency and by that action broke the city's most foolish by-law.

"Mayor Clarke," suggested the hot-under-the-collar Scotty to reporters, "should make an election issue of this insane ruling of no gasoline after 8:00 p.m."

Over the week-end, "Scotty" was "gone but not forgotten."

Citizens who admired his stand of taking the two day jail term instead of paying a $5 fine, as a protest against by-law 792, "looked after" the public spirited garageman.

On Principle, Bill Brockett, Garageman, Goes to Jail

Bill Brockett, the garagman who went to jail for a principle, found out Saturday and Sunday the extent of his sacrifice to put over a point of service for the public. Jailed for two days because he sold gasoline after 8.00 p.m., deadline set by the city by-law 792 to a medical man hurrying out from the city to a confinement case on a farm and to others whose cars were stalled with a gas shortage, Brockett discovered over the weekend, that life in the city police cells is no bed of roses.

REFUSED FINE

Turning down the option of a $5 and cost fine when he pleaded guilty to the gas sales by-law breach, Brockett, operator of Scotty's Garage, 103 avenue, just west of 101 street, entered the cells shortly before noon Saturday.

He took the term as a protest against the by-law which terms a garage or service station operator a "gasoline bootlegger" and makes him a law breaker when he sells gas after the 8:00 p.m. closing hour to any person for any reason no matter how urgent or necessary.

NEXT WAR TO BE TOTAL SAYS GERMAN CHIEF

Ludendorff Says Every Doubt Must be Stifled In Combat

By JOHN A. BOWMAN
Associated Press Foreign Staff

BERLIN, Oct. 28. — The next war must be a "total war" with every breath of doubt and discouragement against it ruthlessly stifled, General Erich Ludendorff maintained today. The great war chieftain made public his views in a booklet called "The Total War," a 12-page provision of the next fray.

No adversaries were specified, but the General assumed the third Reich would be involved, and drew richly upon his own experiences in the war to point out his theme.

The Great War, he set forth, was lost by the overall measures through the collapse of their morale.

"In order to win a complete conquest," he wrote, "the people's soul is essential."

He elaborated two main points. One was that the most rigid control and discipline and the uttermost sacrifice be imposed on the German people, both men and women.

Ludendorff rejected with contempt the old Prussian motto, formerly worn on every soldier's head-dress, "Mit Gott furr Koenig und Vaterland" (With God for King and Fatherland). He called the motto "Jew-inspired." "Gott," he said, means "Jehovah," and the Jews have always claimed the whole world as their fatherland.

Ludendorff's second point was that the next war must be under one responsible supreme "feld herr" (commander-in-chief) with totalitarian powers.

By CORALIE VAN PAASSEN
Bulletin's Foreign Correspondent

PARIS, Oct. 28.—The Italo-Ethiopian war and its repercussions in Europe may turn out to be a windfall for Germany. Not only is the world's attention completely diverted, for the time being at least, from Germany's fantastic armament campaign, but the German mining industry and the state railways are scarcely able to handle the huge orders for bunker - coal placed by Italy.

In the diplomatic field Germany is planning to take full advantage of the difficulties created by Italy's attack on Abyssinia. Yet those who predict that Germany will line up with Italy are entirely wrong. Except some concessions in Austria, there is nothing to be gained from Italy. Germany is playing up to Great Britain and hopes to regain at least some of her former colonies in exchange for neutrality, or even an active support of Britain's attitude in the conflict.

WILL BE BENEFICIARY

Whatever happens in Ethiopia on the Mediterranean, Germany is going to be the beneficiary of the struggle. This was the opinion of Professor George Bernhardt, former editor-in-chief of the Vossiche Zeitung, the foremost liberal publicist of pre-Hitler Germany, who now publishes the Pariser Tageblatt in Paris.

"Hitler could never have dreamed of such a change in his favor," said Professor Bernhardt. "Up till recently," he continued, "the Fuehrer was simply following Mussolini's example, that is, hold the threat of a world war above Europe's head in order to keep his hands free for a private war."

NOT NECESSARY NOW

"This will not be necessary now. Hitler will be offered advantages from all sides. Mussolini is willing to make concessions in Austria, in spite of the fact that he dreads the German empire installed on the Brenner Pass as his next door neighbor.

"But Mussolini is in grave difficulties. Three months' war will completely ruin Italy. In his desperation that man who has finally done what he always threatened to do, will place Europe before some perplexing problems."

ENLISTING OF FRANCE ENDS PEACE TALKS

Not Much Chance Now For Italo-Ethiopian Settlement

By STUART MORONEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

PARIS, Oct. 28.—France's eminent with the nations which have accepted economic sanctions against Italy sent hopes dwindling today for any early discovery of a satisfactory basis for settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict.

Reports the Italian army had resumed active operations in Ethiopia also gave a setback to earlier optimism over peace negotiations.

Informed French quarters said diplomatic exchanges were being resumed today after a week-end lapse, but they conceded that the peace process was bound to be slow and laborious.

Premier Laval, who had taken the lead in the negotiations between Rome, Paris and London, suddenly found his hands full with domestic affairs.

Drafting of 100-odd fresh decree laws for approval by the cabinet and promulgation before the government's special powers expire Oct. 31 confronted the Premier.

C.N.R. GRADE IS NOW READY FOR TRANSFER

S. J. Hungerford Signs Agreement, Fallow to Affix Signature

Bone of contention in the Jasper highway construction plans for many years, the abandoned section of the C.N.R. grade, west of Edson, is ready for transfer to the province as soon as Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works signs the agreement.

BLUE-PRINT COPY

Speaking on Monday, Hon. Mr Fallow said he had received from S. J. Hungerford, president of the C.N.R. a blue-print copy of the section of railway grade to be used. Mr. Hungerford's signature to the agreement is affixed and Hon. Mr. Fallow will sign immediately and return it.

The lease is for 12 years and provides for an annual nominal rental fee of $1.

ONE STRING ATTACHED

The only string attached to the agreement by the C.N.R. is that any material going on to the railway grade in the way of improvements, shall be first approved by company engineers. This is to keep the grade up to standard, a principal declared the minister, already recognized by the government in work done west of Hinton.

For years the transfer of this grade has been the subject of negotiation between the provincial government and the railways.

ENTISCIO, Ethiopia, 3:15 p.m., Oct. 27.—The advance guard of Italy's northern armies moved into the mountains shielding Makale today in the second big push of the campaign in Ethiopia.

The new drive won water and an important new foothold for the Fascist blackshirt forces.

The central column under General Alessandro Pirzio-Biroli advanced 20 kilometres (12½ miles) to occupy the Feres Mai valley—the first important advance since the Italian troops halted on the 60-mile former front line from Adowa to Adigrat.

The spearhead of the attack was poised today in the heights looking down the remainder of the line of march to Makale, strategic site 60 miles southeast of Adowa.

Air scouts reported no concentration of Ethiopians ahead, but the Italian high command ordered a temporary halt, intending to move slowly and carefully.

During recent fighting, a number of forts, some cannon, many machine guns and 1,000 rifles had been captured, said official reports from the south.

MUNDARE FIRE TRAPS OFFICER: DESTROYS HALL

Flames Lick Up Firemen's Quarters and Modern Equipment

MUNDARE, Oct. 28.—Trapping Town Constable Sam Osmchook in his smoke-filled room until he crashed his way through a window to safety, fire, which broke out at 4 a.m., Sunday, destroyed the town fire hall and all its modern fire equipment, valued at $5,000, spreading to the home of P. J. Hayes, which was razed. The total loss is estimated at more than $10,000.

The town constable, who was sleeping at the back of the fire hall, was probably saved from death by the warning of Allison Deschenes, local man, who sounded the alarm.

Newchess, a neighbor, who was awakened by the glare and roar of the flames, dashed into the fire hall, never used after dark by the men, but he could only ring it a few times on account of the intense heat.

Roused by the bell, Constable Ostnchook opened the door of his room, but the flames had filled his room and he was trapped. Groping through the smoke-filled room he found the window and smashed his way through it.

Osmostook and Albert Leanic managed to salvage some fire truck, but not a length of hose could be

RUSSIA ALONE CAN PROFIT BY WAR SAYS HITLER

SANCTIONS NOT REICH CONCERN AVERS FUEHRER

HUMAN NEED IS REFLECTED IN JAIL TERM

A stranger to barred confinement, Brockett irked under the curtailment of his liberty.

Saturday night's usual harvest of yammering drunks kept him awake.

Throughout the long night he sat on his cot or paced the cell block unable to sleep because of the racket made by intoxicated prisoners who kicked their cell bars until their shoes were removed by the jailors, shouted and yelled and generally turned the cell block into the usual week-end bedlam.

GOT NO SLEEP

When Turnkey Bill Lamb came on duty at 3 p.m. Sunday he found Brockett hollow-eyed from lack of sleep, sick with boredom and more firm than ever in his zeal to give the public gasoline in cases of emergency, by-law or no by-law. Turnkey Lamb made up a bed for him in the cell block kitchen and the prisoner snatched a few minutes of much needed sleep.

"There should be a by-law," he told a Bulletin reporter, "but it should be passed to make it compulsory for a gas station operator to motor anybody in time of need.

"Cold winter nights find many a garageman called to run gasoline out to a motorist whose car is stalled blocks away with an empty gas tank. Some go and some do not. There's where you need the by-law."

Brockett sold gas to Dr. Herbert Conroy who was attempting to a confinement case in the country. he sold it to a truck driver who had a load of perishable fish consigned to Red Deer, he sold it to motorists from other towns and provinces who were ignorant of the by-law and he sold it to Edmontonians who ran out of gas after the closing hour.

GAVE SERVICE

In many cases he got out of bed to serve these motorists, not for the fractional profit from the sale of the gas, but because it was a case of necessity and his failure to rise to the occasion would result in human suffering.

"I'll do it again, too," said the curmudgeonous garageman. "I may go to jail for doing it, but I'll go willingly every time. It's the garageman who turns down a doctor or a motorist without gas who should go to jail."

As long as the by-law stands, Garageman Brockett and other public-spirited service station men will have to pay a fine or go to jail for less than five pelun blank to sell gasoline to motorists, no matter how pressing and necessary the need for it is.

Bill Brockett's sacrifice did not go unnoticed over the week-end. Two medical men who had been served with gas in time of need by the jailed garageman left cigarettes at headquarters for him.

No Sincere Friend Can Criticize the Policy Of France, is Frank Admission.

PARIS, Oct. 28.—The newspaper L'Ordre Sunday quoted Reichsfuehrer Hitler as having told a Frenchman that Germany would not halt Italo-German commerce if sanctions were applied by the League of Nations, but would refuse arms to both Italy and Ethiopia.

L'Ordre, quoting an interview Hitler gave Fernand De Brinon, financial expert, said De Brinon asked Hitler what Germany's stand would be on sanctions.

NOT OUR CONCERN

The newspaper said Der Fuehrer replied:

"We are not engaged and we will not engage ourselves in an affair which does not concern us. We are not members of the League."

Hitler further was quoted as saying:

"There is no sincere friend who can criticize the policy of France and the role of Premier Laval."

"There is only one nation in the world which would desire war because there is only one nation in the world to which war would be profitable—Russia."

AGNES MACPHAIL TAKES HER SEAT WITH OPPOSITION

By THOS. WAYLING
Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

OTTAWA, Oct. 28.—Miss Agnes Macphail one of Canada's few women members of parliament will take the opposition side of the forthcoming parliament, as she has done continuously since 1921.

Miss Macphail came to Ottawa from Toronto earlier in the week and that is what I am. Canada needs good legislation more than mere bickering and personalities, and I will do everything I can to assist in that regard.

Miss Macphail entered the house first in 1921 as a U.F.A. member and became part of the Progressive group when with the Ginger group when the Progressive parliament disintegrated. For a time Miss Macphail swallowed the C.C.F. but later returned to her U.F.O. status and in the election ran as U.F.O. Labor.

There will be no women on the government benches, Miss Macphail, being elected as independent Conservative, will be on the opposition side.

In the Senate, Hon. Cairine Wilson will change over to the government benches, and Hon. Iva Fallis will sit on the opposition benches.

HARBOR BOARDS ARE RESIGNING

No resignations have been received so far of the three Halifax commission members, O. P. Goucher and Frank Merchant, or of the harbor commissioners at Quebec, Saint John or Vancouver. It was learned.

The minister is studying the situation before new commissions are appointed.

Burglars Break Into Theatre; Nothing Stolen

Office of the Capitol theatre was broken into sometime early Monday morning, possibly between 6 and 8 o'clock, but the thief failed to get his attempt to rob the safe, according to Manager Walter Wilson.

The night-watchman on the premises left the building at 6 a.m. and when the janitor arrived at 7:15 o'clock he found papers scattered around the office and the handle of the big safe broken off, evidently the work of amateurs. Nothing of value was found missing, according to Mr. Wilson, who remarked that cash was banked every evening.

This is the third attempt made to rob the theatre.

STATE HEALTH INSURANCE IS UPON SHELF

Provincial Govt. Says Costs Of Plan Necessitate Postponement

Following a comprehensive survey, the provincial government has decided that, owing to the extremely heavy costs involved, any effort to put into effect a scheme of state health insurance will be indefinitely postponed, Premier William Aberhart announced on Monday.

Believing that the whole subject of state health insurance is closely allied with the principals of social credit, the Premier said that the idea now could be put into effect only by increased taxation, which the people could not bear on top of relief costs.

In reviewing the situation, the Premier said that any demonstration district selected to try the scheme would have to have a population of 20,000 and in any proposed district it would be necessary to carry out a survey to learn to see what medical services would be required.

The scheme as drafted by the legislative committee that probed the matter, was to have an intensive educational program carried out in a selected district for two months prior to putting the scheme into effect. Following this, a plebiscite would have to be taken.

COST $8,000

The Premier pointed out that from government standpoint it would have to guarantee service and costs for three years and provide organization expenses, publicity and other incidental items, which would amount to at least $8,000.

He said that the approximate expenditure to be guaranteed by the government would be $14.50 per capita of a 20,000 population district or about $290,000. The province would have to pay two-thirds of this. For a man and wife, with two children, the government would have to guarantee $58 a year.

In addition, there would be head office expenses and administration costs as well as collection of municipal districts contributions, which would be about $4,500 a year.

$853,000 YEARLY

If everything worked as hoped, said the Premier and all dues were paid, the government would be called upon to pay about $853,000 a year for each district of 20,000. People on relief could not pay their dues and others could not.

Therefore the cost would have to be met by the government, which would in turn have to be met in the form of taxation on the people.

In view of this cost the government had not gone further with the whole scheme until a later date.

removed to combat the flames. Mundare's volunteer fire tool badly battered when he tried to remove some cribbing from the flames.

Flames and sparks spread to the home of Paul Baron, which was burned to the ground, with only a few pieces of furniture saved. The shifting wind also set the home of Charles Moon on fire, on the other side of the fire hall, but a volunteer bucket brigade was able to put out this fire.

Men were stationed on the roof of every building in the vicinity as sparks and flaming particles for blocks around, threatening the whole business section for a time. The hurry call was put in by Miss Wosnock, telephone operator, for the Vegreville fire brigade, in the early stages of the fire, but when they arrived, two hours later, the blaze was pretty well checked. A light was turned on to aid in controlling flying sparks.

Marie Baron, who was ill in bed when the fire broke out, was burned and was removed to the residence of Mike Wisnarki.

It is not yet known if the town records were destroyed, as they were stored in a safe in the fire hall, which could not be reached until the fire was out and could not be opened until it had cooled.

Baby Tanks Smash At Ethiopians

A novelty in warfare, "baby" tanks like those pictured above have been rushed by Italy to the Ethiopian front, to help offset the disadvantage of rugged African terrain. Hundreds of these light tanks, shown with their occupants in recent manoeuvres, will "scoot" along roads and caravan trails through Ethiopia, observers say, moving so fast it will be difficult for the enemy to oppose them with any weapon.

conflict, conveyed to Britain through France, Premier Laval are regarded here as inacceptable, although cautious soundings are likely to continue for some time.

British authorities are adhering strictly to the position that, while preliminary conversations may be carried on between Rome, Paris and London, the final settlement must be made through the League, and must be acceptable to the League. There is a strong desire here to avoid any kind of "back-door" diplomacy.

SELASSIE FETES ITALY DEFEAT

By JAMES A. MILLS
Associated Press Foreign Staff

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 28—Emperor Haile Selassie, unperturbed by reports of a new Italian offensive, participated with the press and high feudal chiefs today in the ceremony of the Feast of San Stefano at St. Stephens church.

While Italy was celebrating the anniversary of Mussolini's march on Rome, the Ethiopians also made elaborate preparations for another of their own observances —the 38th anniversary of Menelek's historic defeat of the Italians at Aduwa.

This victory will be celebrated Nov. 3, which is also St. George's day. Anti-aircraft guns were mounted in St. George's square, apparently on the assumption that Italian airmen might attempt to break up the celebrations.

BRITISH PRESS DEFENDS NAVY

LONDON, Oct. 28. — Lord Strabolgi, writing in the Daily Herald, criticized Prime Minister Baldwin today for raising what he said was a false "obsolete navy" scare.

"The three British capital ships of peculiar design referred to by the Prime Minister (the warships Nelson, Rodney and Hood) could engage the whole Italian fleet and blow it out of the water with little risk to themselves and every naval officer knows it," Lord Strabolgi said.

DIVORCES FREE TO WORTHY POOR

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Divorce in Sweden are much easier to obtain than in America, says Miss Sonja Branting, judge in the Domestic Relations Court in Stockholm, who is visiting this country for two months. A simple statement of incompatibility is sufficient grounds, and the legal costs amount to $2.50 unless the couple is too poor to afford it, and in which case there is no charge. The only catch in it is that it takes a year for the divorce decree to take effect in the eyes of the law.

The institution of divorce in Sweden dates back to the Middle Ages but the present laws governing legal separation are comparatively new. Miss Branting's task is to try to reconcile those who seek divorces and to arrange for the custody of children if she is unsuccessful. Miss Branting, a member of Lord Marley's International Relief Committee for the victims of Hitlerism, came directly from Berlin, where she attended the International Penal Congress.

Storm Toll In Haiti 2,000 Lives

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Oct. 28.—Official sources estimated last night at least 2,000 persons are dead or missing as a result of the hurricane that swept over the southern peninsula last week-end.

Heavy rains accompanied the hurricane, forcing all streams far out of their banks. The peninsula area has been isolated since Monday. The Jeremie region was the hardest hit, according to official statements.

Bodies of 98 victims already have been recovered at Jacmel.

First estimates Saturday placed the number of dead at possibly 1,000, but officials said last night they were forced to alter their figures, as later reports came in from the stricken districts.

One small airplane is the only means of maintaining communication between this city and the hurricane-swept area.

Damage to food and crops was believed not to have been so great as first feared, but information reaching here was to the effect thousands of persons are homeless and hungry.

BIG SUMS FOR ELECTION TIME

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Not less than $7,500,000 will be spent in the general election campaign, it is estimated by party organizers. Most of this will go for literature, billboards and posters during the next two weeks.

The legal limit for a candidate's expenditure is $4,000, but is determined by the number of votes in the constituency.

In a county the candidate may spend 12 cents a vote; in a one-member borough constituency, 10 cents; in a two-member borough, seven cents.

The campaign is speeding up with party headquarters pouring out tons of literature and organizers working night and day.

keeping a secret, fed him a duck dinner at noon.

This lady herself not many nights ago had the sensation of hearing her motor sputter to a stop with a dry gasoline tank. She went from garage to garage but nowhere could she get gas. She was in a position to appreciate Scotty's gesture by the time she hired a-taxi to tow her home.

A number of medical men who turned to Scotty for gas after hours at their garages refused because of the by-law to fill their empty gas tanks, saw that the prisoner had ample smokes Saturday and Sunday.

Prosecutor A. E. Popple's threat against his garage license has not phased Scotty.

HE CARES NOT

"I get my garage license from the provincial government," he disclosed. "I pay a license to the city for my gasoline pumps but they can go any time. I sell 100 gallons per day at a four cent profit and it all adds up to a convenience for my customers.

"I don't give a damn for Prosecutor Popple and his threats and you can tell him that I'll continue to use my own judgment with after closing hour gas sales. No one that needs gas in cases of emergency will go away from my garage without a few gallons. It may mean a few terms in jail, but I'm prepared for that."

The Edmonton is really the 'Friendly City' its Chamber of Commerce should advertise Chief Crang's pre-warning motorists to carry an extra can of gasoline with them when they come to town, for the council through its gasoline sales by-law seems determined to do all it can to discourage tourists and destroy goodwill."

LONDON, Oct. 28—Thousands gathered in Hyde Park Sunday in a denunciation of the Nazi regime in Germany, with rival parliamentary candidates giving voice to anti-Nazi sentiment. Thousands of former service men, wearing their war medals, marched with various groups to the park.

Major Clement Richard Attlee, Labor leader in the house of commons, said Nazi-ism is "the sort of thing we thought was gone for ever."

PUBLIC OPINION

"We are not here to draw up an indictment against a whole nation," he continued. "We are not here to ask our government to take any particular action, but we are here to rally the forces of public opinion against this foul thing that has come into the world."

ONE SINGLE VOTE IS NOW M'GEER LEAD

C.C.F. Opponent, However, Three Up Upon Reports Made

VANCOUVER, Oct. 28. — The federal election decision in Vancouver-Burrard remained a still heavier continental matter last night. The official count so far as it has proceeded showed G. G. McGeer, Liberal, leading Arnold Webster, C.C.F., by one vote, but available figures on three absentee polls from which the votes themselves have not been received, show Webster leading by three votes.

Which ever way the final count falls both Liberal and Co-operative Commonwealth Federation camps state that a judicial recount will be asked, in which a large number of rejected ballots will be further scrutinized. R. G. Phipps, returning officer, hopes to have the missing votes from the three polls on Tuesday when he will proceed with the count.

Absentee votes counted Saturday were cast as follows: A. J. McDonell, Grains, 11; Hamber, 9; Webster, 38; Dr. H. L. W. Turnbull, Reconstruction, six.

This made the Liberal-C.C.F. standing: McGeer 10,224; Webster 10,223.

INDEPENDENT NEUTRALITY IS UNCLE SAM'S STAND

ADVISES GENEVA OF SYMPATHY BUT TO REMAIN ALOOF

Formal Message Upon Sanctions Issues Draws Careful Reply From Washington.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28. — The United States has reaffirmed its stand of independent neutrality toward the Italo-Ethiopian war, while expressing "sympathetic interest" in efforts by others to bring a halt to armed conflict.

In a formal communication to the League of Nations Saturday, Secretary of State Hull gave this reply to an invitation to comment upon the program of sanctions against Italy and to outline steps taken by the Washington government.

Cautiously, Hull refrained from making any direct commitments on the League's efforts to halt the African conflict through economic pressure. In fact, the "interest" expressed in halting war was so drafted as to apply to any or all wars.

NON-COMMITTAL

In substance, the United States reply to the League's communication was a summarization of steps taken by the government under the neutrality law. To this was added a reiteration of America's intention to maintain peace at home and abroad, a desire for an early halting of hostilities.

In the lengthy note Hull said:

ALL FOR PEACE

"Realizing that war adversely affects every country, that it may seriously endanger the economic welfare of each, causes untold human misery, and even threatens the existence of civilization, the United States, in keeping with the letter and spirit of the pact of Paris and other peace obligations, undertakes at all times to not only exercise its moral influence in favor of peace throughout the world, but to continue in every practicable way within the limitations of our foreign policy to that end.

WILL STEER CLEAR

In recapitulating the moves made by the government under the Neutrality act, embracing an embargo on arms and war materials to both belligerents, a presidential admonition against American business transactions with either country and a warning to United States travellers not to use ships of the combatants, Hull said:

"These steps have been taken for the purpose of dealing with this specific controversy and the special circumstances presented.

"The course thus pursued in advance of action by other governments represents the independent and affirmative policy of the government of the United States and indicates its purpose not to be drawn into the war and its desire not to contribute to a prolongation of the war."

HAILE ARMY DEFEATED ON SETIT RIVER

Big Fascist Offensive To Be Delayed For Few Days

By The Canadian Press

Heavy fighting was reported along the Setit River, with Ethiopian losses estimated at 100 dead and many wounded. The Ethiopians were frustrated in an apparent attempt to invade Eritrea.

General Pietro Badoglio, Italian chief-of-staff, sailed last night from Massaua for Italy, apparently offering reports of an impending general offensive to mark the 14th anniversary of the Fascist march on Rome today. He was said to have decided to delay the offensive a few days.

FASCIST ADVANCE

Official dispatches from Asmara said Italian forces advanced from Adi Nebris to Adinefas on the northern front, occupying Feres Mai and securing an important water supply. Native Eritrean troops reached Debra Sion and Tecla-Aimanot on the north over the week-end.

WAR LOAN FUND

Financial experts in Rome said a huge conversion loan to finance the Ethiopian campaign was half subscribed while a government decree authorized a huge extra appropriation to strengthen the navy.

DUCE ANGERED

In Addis Ababa 50,000 warriors enjoyed a rare meat feast before Emperor Haile Selassie. The Italian minister to Ethiopia left the capital Saturday. The Negus was said to be planning to leave for Dessye shortly, going from there to Harar.

FIVE KILLED AT WEEK-END

Wreckage Confirms Shipwreck Yarn

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Oct. 28—The eerie tale that fisherman told last week of seeing an unidentified schooner going down with all hands in a Caribbean hurricane was confirmed today by wreckage found strewn along Jamaica's eastern coast near Manchioneal.

But the timbers washed ashore Sunday in the wake of the blow that caused millions of dollars damage to this colony's banana crop gave no clue to the name of the unknown vessel and none has yet been reported missing.

ROYALISTS OF GREECE ARE NOW ACTIVE

ATHENS, Oct. 28.—General George Kondylis, Royalist Greek premier, and Panayoti Tsaldaris, the man he succeeded, addressed Royalist demonstrations Sunday while the government promised a fair plebiscite No. 3 on the return of King George II.

The recent-premier, in a speech from the balcony of the communications ministry here, charged Eleutherios Venizelos and General Nicholas Plastiras (seven now are collaborating for an upheaval of the state." (Both Venizelos and Plastiras are in exile.)

Throngs jammed downtown streets and squares, waving flags and carrying huge posters portraying King George, the late King Constantine and Kondylis. Bands played old royalist tunes.

As a result of recent publication abroad of reports that warships had been dispatched to Crete to crush a revolt, Minister of the Interior Sehinas announced today he had "ordered the police to arrest and banish anyone guilty of the dissemination of false news."

The revolt reports were denied.

SIXTEEN MEN DESERT SHIP: ARE RESCUED

Freighter Pounds on Rocks In Gulf of the St. Lawrence

HALIFAX, Oct. 28—Sixteen seamen who abandoned the British freighter Brownlidge on Deadman Island, one of the Magdalen group in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, were safe last night aboard the Halifax salvage tug Foundation Franklin, bound for North Sydney.

Holed and taking water, the 3,276-ton vessel was left pounding on the jagged rocks that form the island's coast, according to a report to Canada's east coast radio.

She was bound for New York with a cargo of pulpwood from Dalhousie, N.B., when she struck in thick fog. Exposed to the wind from the northeast, she soon broke hard on and battered by heavy seas.

All efforts of the powerful Foundation Franklin failed to budge her from the treacherous shoals. The crew were ordered to abandon ship when there appeared no hope of getting the vessel off and their safe removal was reported Sunday.

Details of the rescue were lacking but it was generally the men put off in their own boats and were picked up by the tug.

Babe Drowned Before Birth Live Celebrity

SANFORD, N.C., Oct. 28.—A lusty, squawling baby found himself something of a celebrity today. Franklin Woodrow Jordan was born under water—in a well. He owes his life, according to Dr. J. F. Foster of Sanford, to the fact that he didn't begin breathing until some 20 minutes later when he was rescued.

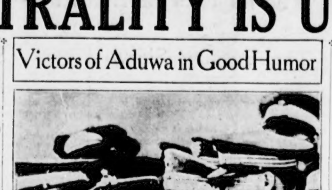

The story of the baby's birth was related Sunday by his mother, Mrs. Allen L. Jordan, in the hospital to which she was moved last Tuesday after her husband lifted her from the deep well. She went there to get a bucket of water, became faint and fell in.

The mother, a flaxen-haired young woman of 26, said she swam around for a while, clutched to a knot for 45 minutes and then lost consciousness. She did not know she had a son until she awoke in the hospital hours later.

Dr. Foster said the mother and infant were little worse for the experience. The child, born a month prematurely, was normal in every respect, Dr. Foster said, except for a few slight bruises on his head.

The baby weighs eight pounds and nine ounces.

Flight-Weary Geese Battle Niagara Falls

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Oct. 28.—Airplanes will be sent rearing over the Niagara river rapids to frighten thousands of geese away from the treacherous waters which threaten to sweep them over Niagara Falls, the state conservation department announced today.

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Oct. 28.—Flashing lights and detonations last night failed to frighten weary geese, estimated to number 10,000, sufficiently to make them leave the Niagara river where for 24 hours they have been alternately swimming and rising in the air.

At midnight there was a sound, like a thousand automobile horns as the frightened birds honked their alarm. They apparently land on the water, rest for about five minutes while they are swept down by the swift current almost to the brink of Horseshoe Falls.

Becoming alarmed, they struggle and rise, but not high above the water. They fly about for a few minutes and land again in the treacherous waters.

It is feared the birds, wearied by the long struggle, will soon find it impossible to rise and will be swept to their death over the falls.

Efforts to frighten them away by switching on the lights used to illuminate the falls, by firing shotguns and even rockets failed to disperse the birds.

DIONNE BABIES NOW EAT MEAT

CALLANDER, Oct. 28.—Seventeen months old today, the Dionne quintuplets added meat to their diet for the first time. The government announced everything was now prepared for the effective operation of sanctions.

PEACE FAR-OFF

A distinct feeling that many weeks and months may elapse before peace can be secured in Ethiopia was apparent in official circles. It brought an end to last week's bright hopes that Premier Mussolini would grasp the olive branch held out to him by British statesmen.

Definitely branding as unacceptable Mussolini's peace proposals advanced in diplomatic channels through Premier Laval of France, Britain expects no temporizing, no delays, no weakening when the League council meets October 31 to put the sanctions machinery into full operation.

Alberta School Costs Climbing

WETASKIWIN, Oct. 28.—E. L. Fuller, chief inspector of schools for the province, in an address to a meeting of school trustees of the Wetaskiwin inspectorate said that since the depression when profitable employment opportunity for youth was less, many more pupils continued on into secondary school which entailed greater expense for parents to secure harder to collect. Cost of public and high schools in the province was ten million dollars or $6.66 per pupil per year per pupil school.

Tax arrears for the province for 1934 were $8,135,000. The province contributes only twelve and a quarter per cent to the total cost while the British government contributed 51 per cent and New-Zealand and Australian governments contributed one hundred per cent in those countries for the education of their children.

V. C. Thompson presided at the meeting.

Anti-Nazi Week Montreal Plan

Give Government A Chance Is Pulpit Plea of Aberhart

CALGARY, Oct. 28. — Actual inauguration of Social Credit plans in Alberta were being delayed by efforts to straighten the financial affairs of the province, Premier Aberhart said here Sunday in an address at his Prophetic Bible Institute.

"Alberta was not bankrupt but its credit was so low that it was difficult to secure further financial assistance, the premier asserted in commenting on the condition of the provincial treasury when he took over office.

GIVE IT CHANCE

"When we went east to negotiate a federal government loan we were told that eastern support would not be forthcoming until the province was put on a sound financial basis," Mr. Aberhart continued. He urged his followers "to give the government and its ministers a chance," adding the government was democratic in that it "has the welfare of the people at heart."

McMURRAY ROAD

Mr. Aberhart stated there was a possibility of hard-surfaced road from the international boundary to Fort McMurray with branches to Banff and Jasper would be a reality next spring.

NO JOBLESS STEPS

No definite steps have been taken with regard to the plan to put about 3,000 single unemployed men on farms for the winter, the premier said. He invited letters from farmers and the unemployed men who wished to take part in the plan.

CARE IN ELECTIONS

"Great interest by Social Crediters is being shown in civic elections but I strongly recommend that you be very careful," Mr. Aberhart warned. "Get the right people in office and don't bring any discredit on Social Credit from within our own ranks."

Thousand Dollar Reward Starts Big Dog Hunt

PAWTUCKET, R.I., Oct. 28. —Hundreds of men and boys were engaged in the biggest dog hunt in New England's greatest dog hunt.

Sox, two-year-old Boston terrier owned by Mrs. Walter P. O'Hara, wife of the race-track magnate, jumped out of the O'Hara car Friday and disappeared on the outskirts of the city.

O'Hara offered $250 for the return of the dog. When search by 100 men through the afternoon failed to produce Sox, O'Hara raised the reward offer to $1,000.

He said the dog might have a market value of $200. Sox was Mrs. O'Hara's constant companion.

Modern Pilgrim Fathers Of Alaska Offer Problem

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28. — The relief administration reported Sunday that all is quiet on the Alaskan front where 850 colonists have settled in the Matanuska valley with the aid of the United States government. Administrator Harry L. Hopkins said he had been advised that "unreasonable requests have ceased and that the colonists are working in full co-operation with administration officials."

IS CALLED TRAGIC

But even as Hopkins made public latest reports from Lieut. Col. L. P. Hunt, marine corps officer in charge of the colony, the American Liberty league declared the project "Might be considered comic if it were not so tragic in the lives of many people."

QUOTE REX BEACH

The league quoted Rex Beach, the author, as saying only 50 families out of 400 would remain permanently, and the colony would cost $5,000,000 instead of $1,250,000.

"Just why the new Pilgrim Fathers' should have been sent to remote Alaska," added the league, "When there is an abundance of idle farm land nearer at home where climatic conditions are more favorable, is one of the mysteries of 'economic planning'."

PRISONERS IN ONTARIO JAIL STAGE RIOT

Threaten Officials, Wreck Fixtures Until Police Subdue Them

CORNWALL, Ont., Oct. 28—Threatening guards, wrecking furniture in the cell block and refusing to obey commands, six prisoners in the overcrowded jail here over the week-end participated in a disturbance which might have resulted in their escape, it was learned Sunday.

For his part in the disturbance, Duncan Willard, 21-year-old Kenyon township farmer, serving an 18 months' sentence for theft, was reported to be in solitary confinement. The five other prisoners participating were being punished, it was stated.

The trouble broke out at supper time Saturday when all of the six prisoners in one cell block threatened Governor Ralph Cook and Bernard Maloney, guard. They were not subdued until provincial and city police had been hurriedly summoned.

MOVE AFOOT FOR NEW TRADE WITH SOVIET

MONTREAL, Oct. 28.—Anxious to export large quantities of made-up goods to Soviet Russia, a group of men's clothing manufacturers in Montreal is prepared to form a special finance corporation to achieve that end and is in communication with Hon. T. D. Bouchard, minister of municipal affairs, trade and commerce.

On behalf of the group, Adj. Joseph Schlesser announced Sunday that should negotiations for resumption of full trade between Canada and the U.S.S.R. follow Mr. Bouchard's conference with the Soviet ambassador at Washington next week, the clothing trade would like to be borne in mind.

Mr. Bouchard, in his capacity as minister of trade and commerce, went to Washington last week to discuss with Soviet Ambassador Troyanovsky possibility of exchange of goods between the U.S. S.R. and the province of Quebec. It was said at the time that should agreement be reached in regard to such trading the Quebec government would approach the Ottawa government for permission as Ottawa would have to lift its embargo.

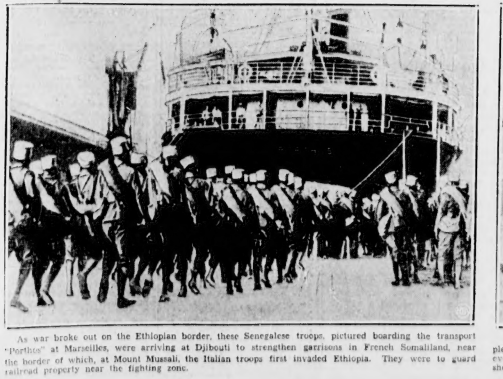

Juvenile Gang Lands in Toils

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Oct. 28—Police believed they had solved a series of robberies Sunday with the arrest of a group of juveniles with six ringleaders. The thefts were mostly small amounts of money and the boys will appear in juvenile court next week.

MUSIC SCHOLARSHIPS

LLOYDMINSTER, Oct. 28.—The University of Saskatchewan announces that a primary scholarship has been awarded Marna Kennedy of Lloydminster, in the local examinations in music conducted by the university. The competition covers the whole province, which means that this pupil obtained the highest marks on this department. Marna is a resident of the Greenwood district just north of Lloydminster and is a pupil of Mrs. A. Cross.

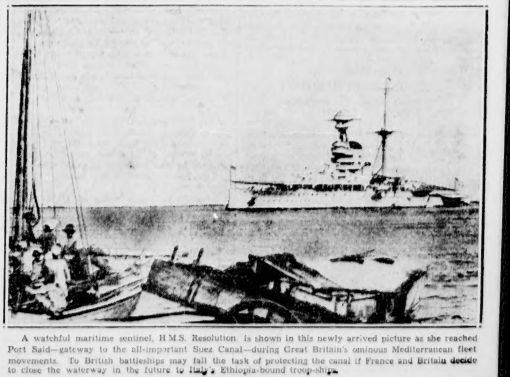

New Photos Show British and French Bolstering Defences Near War Zone

As war broke out on the Ethiopian border, these Senegalese troops, pictured boarding the transport "Porthos" at Marseilles, were arriving at Djibouti to strengthen garrisons in French Somaliland, near the border of which, at Mount Mussali, the Italian troops first invaded Ethiopia. They were to guard railroad property near the fighting zone.

Like a rock thrown into a pond, the Ethiopian war sends out ripples of militarism into neighboring countries. Egypt girds for any eventuality, holding extensive manoeuvres near Cairo. A soldier is shown above firing from sandbags while officers watch.

A watchful maritime sentinel, H.M.S. Resolution, is shown in this newly arrived picture as she reached Port Said—gateway to the all-important Suez Canal—during Great Britain's ominous Mediterranean fleet movements. To British battleships may fall the task of protecting the canal if France and Britain decide to close the waterway in the future to Italy's Ethiopia-bound troopships.

THE TAX RATE

Along with the question of where the money comes from to pay for so many new cars, a standing conundrum is where taxpayers get the money to pay so high a percentage of the taxes levied by the city year after year.

It is expected tax-money paid in this year will amount to more than ninety per cent of the city levy. There is no criticism coming to Edmonton taxpayers on the ground that they are indifferent to the requirements of the city or to the advisability of saving their property from confiscation.

An interesting—and instructive—fact is that more tax-money is coming in this year under the 55 mill rate than was collected last year under the 64 mill rate. The inference is that a reduction to 50 mills would result in next year's collections being still closer to the amount of the levy.

High taxation does more than prevent taxes being paid. It discourages the taxpayer from trying to pay them. "What's the use" trying to pay if taxation amounts to a good round rate of interest on the market value of property? It is cheaper in such circumstances to let the city take the property, and rent a house to live in.

A 55 mill tax rate is still too high. It is 5½ per cent of the assessed value of property, and property cannot on the average be sold today for its assessed value. The taxpayers, who have been making a resolute fight to keep their homes, deserve a further reduction. What is equally to the point—they cannot go on paying the present rate indefinitely. A 50 mill rate is all they should be asked to pay next year.

LIQUOR ADVERTISEMENTS

The Provincial Government is thinking of forbidding the publication of liquor advertisements in Alberta papers. That would be good for newspapers published outside the province, would encourage and assist them to "grab territory" from their Alberta contemporaries, since what they lost in securing Alberta circulation could be made up by the proceeds from liquor advertising.

It would be bad for Alberta newspapers, would mean less employment and less wages for Alberta printers and newspapermen, would cut off a large amount of outside money that is brought into the province every year in payment for such advertisements and put into circulation here.

Of the money the Government ships out of the province every year to pay for liquor, little ever comes back except that which is paid for liquor advertisements published inside the province. Prohibiting the advertisements would make the Government's liquor business a strictly money-exporting business.

Stopping the advertisements would not lessen the consumption of liquor in Alberta. The Premier is confident that it would not reduce sales and he is entitled to that. People do not learn to drink liquor by reading advertisements. The advertisements tell people who do drink what alternative brands are on the market.

Without the advertisements the consumer would have to take what brands the liquor vendor or the Ministers saw fit to stock. Buyer preference would be choked out, and the consumer would have to accept such brands as the sales department might select. The benefits would go to the particular manufacturers to whom the Government chose to give its patronage.

THE POOR ECONOMIST

Pity the poor professor of political economy. He must be feeling as "dismal" as the subject he teaches.

For five years he has been told his thinking had not kept pace with the march of events, that he was mumbling the dogmas of a dead age, that he could neither tell us how the depression came about nor how to get out of it. But now comes Sir Edward Beatty to say, "the record of our universities in studying the history of the past and drawing from it lessons for the future, is not, in the field of economics, one in which we can take great pride."

There are, Sir Edward admits, "many university economists in Canada who have a sound and thorough knowledge of economic history" and whose advice to the state and to businessmen had been "extremely valuable" in these troubled times. But as for the younger men, their thoughts are "deeply colored by Socialist ideas," the result of "an emotional desire for correction of admitted defects in our society which outruns the slower but safer processes of logical reasoning."

So now the luckless professor is in a cross-fire, and getting it from both sides. Or to put it another way, he must take his choice whether to be numbered among the "sound" expounders of the orthodox philosophy or be accused of having a socialistic urge.

Into this realm of high controversy of course the plain man many only venture remembering that "angels fear to tread." But while his view may "lack logical validity," or approved cultural background, or something, he is pretty sure of one thing. If what has happened to the state and to business during the last five years is in any large measure due to the valued advice of "sound" economists of the old school, he will pin his hope for the future on the younger men, even if some of these have swung too far to the "left" in their revulsion from the horrors of deflation.

A Victoria man boasts a hen which produced 326 eggs in 51 weeks. Evidently an old-fashioned biddy who hasn't heard of the grand new gospel of curtailment, and thinks it is her business to turn out as many eggs as she knows how. She has more sense than some other two-legged creatures, who have been translating their folly into national policies in the last few years.

Poems That Live

LITTLE BOY BLUE

The little toy dog is covered with dust,
But sturdy and stanch he stands;
And the little toy soldier is red with rust,
And his musket moulds in his hands.
Time was when the little toy dog was new,
And the soldier was passing fair;
And that was the time when our Little Boy Blue
Kissed them and put them there.

"Now, don't you go till I come," he said,
"And don't you make any noise!"
So, toddling off to his trundle-bed,
He dreamt of the pretty toys;
And, as he was dreaming, an angel song
Awakened our Little Boy Blue—
Oh! the years are many, the years are long,
But the little toy friends are true!

Ay, faithful to Little Boy Blue they stand,
Each in the same old place,
Awaiting the touch of a little hand,
The smile of a little face;
And they wonder, as waiting the long years through
In the dust of that little chair,
What has become of our Little Boy Blue,
Since he kissed them and put them there.
—Eugene Field.

The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

Thanksgiving morning I sauntered to the Vancouver waterfront to see the little yacht "Romance" enter the harbor at the end of her 6000 mile journey across the Pacific from Hong Kong. Looking trim and neat, and convoyed by a number of the yachts of the Royal Vancouver Yacht Club, the little vessel bore no evidence of the battering about she must have endured on that tempestuous crossing.

J. S. Cowper

Capt. Green, her owner and navigator, berthed his 45 foot dream ship close to where he used to berth one of the giant Empresses, 650 feet long and nearly a thousand times the tonnage of "Romance."

What is the lure of small-boat sailing. It isn't economy and it isn't comfort. It isn't just the spirit of ownership—"a small thing but mine own." With the choice of travelling up-Gulf in a day or two on a comfortable passenger steamer, with no fear of the weather, with staterooms and dining saloon and company, I'm planning to go up alone in a 24-foot semi-speed cruiser. I ask myself why the choice, and can only conclude that it is the satisfaction of conquest—the same sort of pleasure that a rider gets in mastering a restive horse.

Capt. Green knows the peril of the Pacific; that was why he found pleasure in making the crossing.

Ships are so well proportioned that at a distance, or in a haze, it is difficult to estimate their size. Had it not been for the convoying craft I'd have thought Romance was a refined type of good-sized sealing schooner, over 100 feet length. But a big sailing dinghy came alongside, its one mast towering several feet above the masts of Romance, and spoiled the illusion. One realized then what a little thing she is to have breasted the Pacific and outfaced storms.

Now she has arrived, her appearance should settle any dispute about her correct classification. At first she was announced as a brigantine. Last week, so excellent an authority as Ronald Kenyon who writes the nautical column, "Over the Foreyard" in the Vancouver Province—and is an old shell-back to boot—described her as ketch-rigged. But her mainmast is higher than her foremast and set near amidships, which makes her a schooner and not a ketch, while her slim yards on that foremast bring her into classification with the topsail schooners that used to carry on a great deal of the coasting trade round the English coast—save that she has yacht lines.

I have Romance, which is shortly to make a round of the Californian ports, sets a sensible fashion for pleasure craft, with her comfortable quarters and staunch sea-going qualities. For some years I've treasured a hope for a craft of about the same size as Romance, but modelled on the lines of a Thames sailing barge. The Thames barges are wonderful sailing craft in some winds, with spirit-sails easily handled. Their hull lines provide large accommodation below.

The most comfortable craft—and most seaworthy too—I ever sailed on, was the Mabel Dell, a 100 ton yacht. As the Naden she had been built for government survey work in northern B.C. waters. Her owner, Capt. J. H. Hobbs, had her entered in the cross-Pacific yacht race. I was promised a place in her amateur crew, but the owner had to leave for England and the race was withdrawn. The last I heard of the lovely schooner, she was owned by John Gilbert, the movie actor, and attached to one of the Californian yacht squadrons.

A news despatch tells how thousands of gallons of beer, ale and porter, were poured into the Detroit river last week.

One's mind jumped at once to stories of coffee being burned, bananas fed to the fishes, sows slaughtered and cotton ploughed under in order to keep prices up. Were the economics of scarcity being applied to the golden fluid that Harriet Martineau once described as "the natural origin of Conservative politics."

Rest in peace! There is no proposal to dump beer in the sewers in order to raise the price of the amber thirst-developer.

A very marvellous thing had happened. A brewery had gone into bankruptcy. So they capped one marvel with another. The creditors —who may have been rival brewers themselves—ordered the stocks dumped into the river in order to secure a rebate of the money paid for excise.

Fashion Note. The educational director of the American Cosmeticians' Association, lecturing before six thousand beauty specialists, gives the following advice: "Sleep raw and be beautiful." The old-fashioned nightgown it appears, is an enemy to beauty. It keeps the pores from breathing freely. Come to think of it, most of the homely ones favor the old-fashioned nightgown.

The lecturer also advocated placing the feet, instead of the head, on the pillow, saying it gives better circulation that way.

No one can deny that a beautiful figure looks better raw than when swathed in an old-fashioned night-gown, but the pillow idea contradicts physics—unless one has a large cavity in the skull where the brain should be.

Two and a half years ago the Executive of the Bank ventured the opinion that the centre of gravity was shifting to the political sphere and that the world seemed to be drifting into a "war cycle." Since these statements were made it has become increasingly important to consider the political as well as the economic side of world conditions, for the two elements have become closely interwoven.—Canadian Bank of Commerce.

The U.F.A. government apparently left Alberta's finances in pretty much the same condition as Saskatchewan's were left by the Anderson government and Ontario's by the Henry government. All three governments were in the habit of highly commending themselves for the efficiency of their administration. —Winnipeg Free Press.

Sciatica

By DOCTOR FRANK McCOY

Sciatica is a common disorder, occurring more frequently among men than among women. It is most likely to appear in the patient of middle age. Sciatica refers to a painful irritation of the great sciatic nerve, which emerges from the pelvis and runs down the leg. The symptoms are similar to those seen in neuritis.

Usually, sciatica is secondary in nature, that is, it develops as the result of some other primary trouble. Arthritis of the lower spine or the hip-joint may cause sciatica; sluggish elimination is a common cause. Exposure to cold or to damp, or injury may serve as exciting causes, but cannot be considered the fundamental cause. As a general rule, the patient has a predisposition to rheumatism and in the case of sciatica, these rheumatic poisons accumulate around the sciatic nerve, producing an irritation. Sacro-iliac strain is an additional possible cause. Spinal subluxations, in which there occurs a slipping of some of the small bones in the lower spine, may cause pressure and lead to sciatica.

Pain is the outstanding symptom of sciatica and the pain may seem to arise in the lower back. As a general rule, the pain is at first slight, gradually growing worse. Sometimes the patient complains of a pain in the back of the thigh which is more marked after holding the affected leg in certain positions. As the pain becomes more noticeable, it will extend downward along the course of the nerve and pressure on certain spots along the irritated nerve, will cause extreme tenderness. The pain may localize in one of the branches of the sciatic nerve, such as the popliteal. The patient describes the pain as gnawing or boring and it commonly increases in intensity at night. Usually sciatica affects one side only, although it may be bilateral.

Sciatica may continue for months or years, recurring from time to time. Before a complete recovery may be expected, a careful examination is required. It it is discovered that the patient has a tendency to diabetes or to rheumatism, these underlying disorders must be treated before the sciatica will disappear. Any point of focal infection as in the tonsils or at the roots of teeth, should receive suitable local treatment, which is given in addition to the general treatment.

During the severe attacks, the patient should be encouraged to rest, assuming the position in bed which affords the least distress. Baking the painful area with the Deep Therapy Lamp is often of benefit, the deep, penetrating heat of the lamp providing considerable relief. The soothing heat of the diathermy is frequently of value. The application of hot towels may be employed as home treatment to make the patient more comfortable and the towels are to be changed quite often. As soon as one begins to cool, it is replaced with a fresh hot one.

I find the fast a great help in these cases, as the patient juds fast will allow the body to eliminate the rheumatic toxins which may be irritating the nerve.

If the cause of sciatica is a pinching of one of the nerves coming from the spine which joins the sciatic nerve, it is a good plan to secure a chiropractic treatment which will return the vertebra which is out of place to its normal position. Often the discomfort of sciatica may be relieved by a single treatment when the discomfort is present in one leg only. When sciatica exists in only the one leg, this usually means that it is due to pressure which may be easily removed. I have seen many patients relieved in this way.

I suggest that you send for my article on Sciatica. Write to me, enclosing ten cents and one large, self-addressed envelope and request the article.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION—Mr. Leonard M. wants to know what could be causing a purple spot on my lower lip? It has been there for years but just lately it has been pulling my lip down."

ANSWER—You should by all means have the spot examined by your doctor. I could not give you any definite opinion without first examining you.

QUESTION—Nora B. says: "Do you believe that canned milk is good for cooking purposes? I like to add it to vegetables, as my family enjoys the flavor."

ANSWER—I consider that canned milk is entirely wholesome when used in cooking. Generally it is added just as it comes from the can, or it may be diluted with water if you desire.

SIDE GLANCES — By George Clark

On This Date

A Day in Canadian History —o— By FRED WILLIAMS

On this date in 1877 the newspapers of Canada carried a political sensation, the news that on the previous day Wilfrid Laurier, the young M. P. for Drummond-Arthabaska, had been defeated in that riding when seeking re-election after his appointment as Minister of Inland Revenue. Laurier had been returned at the general election of 1874 by 238 majority. When he returned home on October 9, 1877, to begin his campaign for re-election he was met with acclaim, the town of Arthabaskaville was en fete, the streets were decorated, the people congratulated the new minister.

In fact, it looked like a walkover, but a Conservative government was in power at Quebec and it was decided that Laurier must be opposed. Just as in the equally famous election in the same country in 1910, the most outrageous tactics were resorted to. An element in the Roman Catholic Church was opposed to the Liberal party therefore, Laurier must be defeated, if possible. Just as in 1910 he went around the parishes telling the mothers that if Laurier's naval bill were enforced their sons would be taken to Halifax to be "food for cannon," so in 1877 emissaries told the habitant that Laurier was a bad Catholic, that he and his party were under the ban, end in certain cases the charge was made that Laurier had become "a Protestant!" The Irish Catholics in the constituency were told that Laurier had joined the Orange order, the French that he had become a Presbyterian, and money and whiskey flowed like water.

On election day Laurier was defeated by 29 votes. He was broken-hearted — he thus rejected in his own home. He talked of abandoning politics, but his good wife urged him to stay, and he found a seat in Quebec East which he held until his death in 1919. Perhaps, in a way, the defeat was a good thing. It gave Laurier a safe seat, he could trust the people of Quebec East while he was busy elsewhere. It was a strange coincidence that it was his home county which in 1910 gave the first blow to the Laurier prestige and started the disloyal campaign which the next year defeated him on the naval policy.

WHEN SOLDIERS RETURN

A great many pictures have been printed of Italian troopships leaving for Africa.

They show laughing, cheering so'diers lining the rail amid an air of excitement and flagwaving, and they set us thinking subconsciously that war is a high adventure.

What we haven't seen is pictures of the same ships coming back again, laden with the war's victims.

But tropical fever and Ethiopian bullets have already taken their toll.

French sources report that more than 10,000 casualties from the Italian armies in Ethiopia have already been brought back through the Suez Canal.

Nearly every returning troopship, it is said, carries scores or hundreds of invalids.

If we could see those pictures along with the others, it might help us to understand war for the tragic business of pain and disillusionment it really is.

ELECTION COMMENT

Editor Bulletin: The Press Comment on the election gives us an excellent cross-cut of newspaper thought through Canada. And it suggests a few reflections.

The Montreal Star's appeal now for "non-partisan co-operation" in handling the problems before parliament would be welcome if there were any common ground as to the basic nature of the problem. But the hope that Mr. Bennett has gone to suggest a solution by a united nation "steeling itself with grim determination to the sacrifices that must be made, the stern economies that must be effected" in other words a continuance of the policy of ruthless deflation which has been dominant during the last five years, with such disastrous results. More needless poverty amid abundance, a quicker descent into bankruptcy. The Star should think again. Before there can be agreement on the remedies to be applied, there must be agreement as to the causes of the depression.

The Winnipeg Tribune ascribes the landslide not to the merits of the Liberal policies but to "public discontent." "The luck of governments is expressed in world economic conditions. No government can give prosperity to its people in a world teeming with economic adversity." And the editor expresses the hope that we should pray that Mr. King will have a better run of luck. There are indications that this hope may be realized for the depression is beginning to die of old age." Again there is need for analytical thinking rather than prayer. We suggest rather that the apparent "recovery" of the past year is due to a wave of morphine, in the form of activities induced by preparations for war, and this last shot in the arm is worse than his first, unless there is a fundamental change in the rules of the game. But the Tribune is on sounder ground when it ascribes the popular sweep to public discontent. This is an echo, though the editor may not have been conscious of it, of the political philosophy expounded at Buxton by Major Douglas (whom one writer has described as "the leading British statesman alive today"), in what is now known as the Buxton policy: to demand results, and to place on parliament the responsibility for achieving results. The larger Mr. King's majority, the greater the measure of his responsibility for results. He may modify, but he cannot abolish unemployment. He must abolish poverty." By that test he will be judged.

Both the Calgary Albertan and the Vancouver Sun are alive to the gravity of that responsibility. "In the very moment of Liberal triumph it is a solemn thought" (Albertan). "Let us be mute" a warning for Liberalism as a triumph for it. The same public sentiment that put them into office may just as determinedly throw them out." (The Sun). The electors, indeed, are not concerned with methods, tariff revision, trade treaties, monetary reform and all the rest. It is results only will count. They know that in so rich a land as Canada poverty is not only an absurdity, but a disgrace. They demand its abolition. They know from the experience of 20 years ago that money in billions can be provided in time of war. Then why not in peace? Whatever is physically possible is financially possible.

THE MODERN CHIVALRY

Editor Bulletin: While the unemployed youth and single men of Canada are eating out their hearts in remote "camps" (working eight hours a day, and keep, for board and 20 cents) what is happening to their wives-to-be, to mothers of the next generation?

In the city of Montreal the female single unemployed are expected to live on less and keep "respectable" on $1.80 per week. (The relief commission pays $1.50 for their "lodgings"). If all is not a premium upon immorality, what is? Yet if ever they yield to temptation they will up with them. "One hundred and thirty women were struck off the relief rolls recently, when it was discovered that they had derived revenue from immoral sources" (local press, October 16).

The workless daughters of Quebec must take to prostitution as a full-time job, or else "live" on $1.80 a week. Apparently that is the official "standard of living" for unemployed and unappropriated virgins or widows. It is fa !ly one to be proud of.

By R. T. ELLIOTT, K.C.

Hereunder is reproduced an editorial from Syren and Shipping, London, in which it is pointed out that even with the widest application of Social Credit, the only national dividend which would be available would consist of:

1. The sum of interest saved by interest-free credit for public purposes; and

2. Increase in national wealth by the working use of sound credit at present unissued.

These are the two factors the Edmonton Bulletin has put forward for years, advocating the retirement of all public bonds by legal tender secured for retirement by a sinking fund secured on each specific revenue released from bonded indebtedness; and also advocating an increase of currency so that any individual desiring to carry out any specific work of production or construction could get access to credit and obtain the use of currency.

The editorial from Syren and Shipping is written in an absolutely impartial spirit, and throws much clarity upon what is certainly the most important phase of finance. You will be well advised to study it most carefully and to the student of English it will be interesting as a use of the graphic and direct method of explanation; it reads:

"In the first place I must point out that the idea of a balanced national credit account is a fairly recent innovation. Many of the early social creditors claimed that since all credit is sound so long as it is respected, one could inflate purchasing power ad infinitum by adding a never-ending string of noughts to the nation's debit. In practical politics, of course, the international factor would prevent this unless the whole world adopted the plan. Personally, I am of opinion that a credit system based upon national production is economically sound, and would be in many respects superior to the present monetary system. At present we suffer not only because of a shortage of credit, but also because the fluctuating demand and the intenst factor cause constant disturbances in the price and value scale, and the transfer of credit authority from the banks to the Crown would have a valuable stabilizing effect upon prices. It follows that so long as the national credit account is correctly balanced, the ideal of a national dividend is also economically sound. There could be, no doubt, a substantial volume of credit offered to the individual if we were making more use of the national productive capacity. So far so good. Where I differ from the social credit enthusiast is on the question of "just price." I do not believe this can possibly be calculated. The margin certainly exists between the total productive price and the consumption factor of purchasing power directly created, but the difference represented by raw materials, plant, etc., does not mean a dead margin, for the purchase factor of the latter permits further credit for consumers, and even the question of time lag is ruled out considerably by the existence of other credits held by buyers outside the immediate cycle of production instanced. To me, also, the margin to be distributed in the form of a national dividend may be substantial, but nothing like the total most social credit enthusiasts imagine. The margin will actually be mainly the sum of interest saved and the benefits of sound credit at present unissued, both of which will be swelled by the finance of short term consumption. A sound credit system freed from the banks would have big advantages. It would permit interest-free credits for State purposes, whereas at present borrowings can only be done on an interest basis; and interest is always a constant brake on the balancing of production and consumption. Honestly, I think the change in our credit system will have to come, and may happen very soon. It should banish poverty and want. But as the largest portion of the world's population in engaged in the slow process of food production we must not expect a generally beneficial Utopia. The countries likely to benefit first and most are the manufacturing countries, and it will be in the larger volume of manufactured goods which he will be able to buy that the individual will notice the greatest benefit. Space considerations prevent me from discussing various probable repercussions. I will therefore close the topic by remarking that if I were running the social credit secretariat I should ignore the "just price" maze and concentrate upon the sound principle of a changed credit system with a national dividend or lower taxation."

Finally to these correspondents who have requested further proof that the movement for the abolishing of poverty can ever succeed, we direct attention to the words used above: "It should banish poverty and want."

MANIFESTO OF BRITISH GOVT. IS PUBLISHED

Firm League Support and More Defence Strength Are Keynotes

LONDON, Oct. 28—Support of the League of Nations and strengthening of defence forces were set forth Monday as cardinal points in a manifesto issued by the National government for the general election.

The manifesto comprehensively reviewed the policy of the government since its advent to power in 1931, outlined broad measures for development of domestic needs and said formation of the National government had exercised "a profound influence on the course of international events."

The country has "emerged from the depths of depression to a steady returning prosperity, with the name of Britain high in the councils of the world," it asserted.

NIED DEFENCES

"The actual condition of our defence forces is not satisfactory, gaps in the defences must be repaired, but Britain will never use her forces for aggression."

Reference was made to "the beneficial results" of the Ottawa agreements. "The government will endeavor further to promote the exchange of inter-empire goods. Attention will be paid to the necessary extension of the markets of the colonial empire."

FOREIGN TRADE

"An endeavor will be made to reduce foreign barriers by bilateral commercial treaties."

The broad issue of defence, the manifesto declared, "is whether the stability and confidence which the National government has built up are to be preserved in a period of special difficulty and anxiety.

LEAGUE SUPPORT

"The League of Nations will remain the keystone of British foreign policies. There will be no wavering in the policy hitherto pursued in the present unhappy Italo-Abyssinian conflict. A commonwealth which holds the position in the world occupied by the United Kingdom and her empire partners must always take an influential part in league discussions."

There will be no relaxation of efforts to attain by international agreement a general limitation of armaments by every possible means, it said.

REVIVE YARN REDFERN ALIVE DUTCH GUIANA

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28. — William La Varre, South American explorer, had presented to the state department information he believes shows Paul Redfern, missing on a flight to Brazil seven years ago, is alive in southern Dutch Guiana.

The flier was given up for dead after he failed to reach Brazil on his projected course from Port Georgia. Reports have since frequently asserted Redfern to be alive.

Redfern, La Varre said he had learned on a recent trip to Dutch Guiana, broke his hip when his plane crashed in rough country 200 miles north of Brazil. He said the aviator was cared for by the natives and since has been living in the hut of the tribe's medicine man.

La Varre said arrangements now are being made for Major Willis Taylor, an army flier stationed in Panama, to make an unofficial aerial expedition into the Guiana area.

ANOTHER FAIR DAME SUES BREWER SCION

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—With one $50,000 verdict against him, Louis Ehret Jr., heir to the Ehret Brewery fortune, had another cloud—a $25,000 one—placed up by a comely young Canadian matron — on his horizon last night.

He is due in supreme court today to defend himself against a damage suit for that amount brought by Mrs. Frieda McDonnell, formerly Mrs. Vera McDermott of Canada. The plaintiff's former Canadian address could not be learned.

Mrs. McDonnell claims she was hurt at the same time as Miss Eileen Wenzel, show girl who obtained jury approval of her $50,000 valuation of damage done her paralyzing when Ehret's car crashed into a light-post. Miss Wenzel and Mrs. McDonnell were riding in the young heir's car at the time.

HENCHMAN MAY HAVE SHOT DUTCH SHULTZ, CLAIM

NEWARK, N.J., Oct. 28.—Confronted by a maze of clues, detectives strove to prevent the tavern massacre of Dutch Schultz and his three lieutenants from going into the records as "unsolved."

Despite their activity, the wholesale murder seemed headed for the oblivion of most unsolved gangland clashes. Deputy Police Chief John Haller today issued the cryptic statement:

"There have been no new developments. There are no arrests."

An ironic note was introduced into the care when Haller said he was awaiting a ballistics' report which might show that Schultz, otherwise Arthur Flegenheimer—was shot by one of his own bodyguards.

"Schultz was killed by a .45 calibre bullet," Haller said, "while the gunmen who came into that tavern last Wednesday night were using .38's. Schultz bodyguards were armed with .45 calibre guns. It's quite possible he just happened to get into the line of fire."

Dare Death to Retrieve Football

Jail Fugitives Plead Guilty

Mountain lions and leopards have been crossed successfully.

The Blonde Countess

By H. O. Yardley

READ THIS FIRST

Pretty JOEL CARTER is secretary to NATHANIEL GREENLEAF, head of the U.S. Black Chamber, where room of the real wartime secret service work is done. COUNTESS THORLUND, wife of the Scandinavian ambassador, asks Greenleaf to permit her to work with him at the Black Chamber. Distrusting her, he nevertheless permits her to advertise for a secretary in the hope of trapping J-21, mysterious woman spy. The secretary is SARAH KEMBLE, one of Greenleaf's operatives. There is an explosion at the Black Chamber and Greenleaf is at a loss to understand the purpose of the blast when he discovers that the code books apparently have not been disturbed, neither has the apartment been searched during the absence. (NOW GO ON WITH hour STORY.

CHAPTER 26

GREENLEAF was a believer, as are scientists, artists and inventors in the hunch, that certainty of success which comes at the end of effort. But no one knew better than he the requisite preparation for the hunch. Hunches do not come to the unworthy and the unprepared. Only as the mind is saturated with its problem is it ready obeying some mysterious law, to lay its case before the subconscious mind which, working best while the conscious mind is asleep, solves problems that the unaided reason cannot solve. In the imperative problem before him, that of breaking the German cipher, he had done his best with scanty materials to prepare the way for his mysterious assistant. Or, rather, the roles were reversed; he was the assistant to this mysterious inner mind which thought so much more acutely than he.

Was his dream prophetic of the hunch? Was he on the verge of the all important discovery? He was sane enough not to let a tense of certainty. The answer he sought floated tantalizingly just out of sight beyond the fringe of logic. It was always so, at first, and he would not discover a possibility to probability, there were things he must do. He would rehearse the whole case mentally, searching for the intercepts which in the last two weeks had been taken from the German wireless dispatches emanating from Mexico City. All the tabulations based on these—too few as yet—he would run over. And then maybe he could hurry the matter, could be more effective get an early solution. Time was growing short. In the next few days, messages of the utmost importance were to go from Washington to the English fleet. The American transports were almost ready to sail. When they were at sea, the time and place of their rendezvous with the British fleet, which was to meet and escort them to a French port, must be arranged by wireless. It was imperative, then, that the German code messages should be read in short, that the Germans knew. The lives of thousands of men, the very success of the war might hinge on that knowledge.

It was nearing noon when he reached the Black Chamber, for he had been up to a late hour the night before and his presence in the early morning was seldom needed. Intercepts of German wireless messages were seldom received before noon. Today it was otherwise. The station at Mexico City had been busy from an early hour. Already his desk was littered with cipher messages, still so maddeningly unreadable. Harry, the wireless man, came in as he was standing in hat and overcoat looking over them.

"Been going on since eight o'clock," said Harry laconically, "and still at it. Seems they must of got hold of a bunch of dope."

What the dope might be, Greenleaf could not guess. He was uneasy. Such activity was ominous. He had read in the secret reports from the French and English cipher bureaus that great activity behind the enemy's lines was always preceded by copious radio messages. Even when the cipher experts could not read the secret intercepts the very facts that these were numerous was in itself a warning signal. Might not what was going on the western front be true here also? Had the German secret service agents got hold of unexpected information? Is there a fresh leak like that presumably stopped by the detection of Duval? No knowing. One bright spot there was. With this copious flood of cipher, tabulation and analysis could be made far more complete and revealing than before. He summoned Major Burns and delivered the messages to her.

"Push this," he said, "and any more that may come. Put everyone on the job. We've got to get a clue to the system—fast."

The girl took pale and worn from lack of sleep. He recognized the fact, but it was no time for personal considerations. He could spare neither her, nor himself, nor anyone at this moment. He absorbed was he in the job before him that he was scarcely aware of Joel's existence or of her frequent glances at him. She spoke twice before he answered.

"The secretary of war wants to talk with you," she repeated.

"Oh, yes," he answered absently. "Get him on the wire, will you?"

She obeyed, and a moment later he was listening to the golden voiced secretary whose tongue had made him a figure of national importance.

"Can you come over here now?" the secretary asked. "There are important matters which we can't discuss on the phone."

"I'll be right along," Greenleaf said and hung up. Then, to Joel, "I'm going to the war department, for how long I don't know. I'll return here."

The walk cleared his mind. Wartime Washington, with its troops and sentries, its air of gaiety and tension, of purposeful and hopeful activity, was tonic to the nerves. The secretary himself breathed confidence of assured success. Yet Greenleaf knew, none better, that the secretary, great politician that he was, as a secretary of war and administrator of a vast and complicated machine, was a square peg in a round hole.

The great politician from the middle west was dressed as always, in black. A black string tie looked rather like a shoe-lace under his low, shiny collar. The heavy face, clean shaven, the actor's mouth, and blunt nose were topped by a high forehead that rose to a shiny dome of skull fringed with a girdle of long gray locks slightly curling. The eyes were friendly and the man's manner was easy and courteous. Greenleaf, who had no great respect for the secretary's administrative powers, nevertheless liked the man immensely. He was honest, and, though ambitious, more wistful of serving his country than of making a name for himself. He was less petty than most of the politicians Greenleaf knew in official life.

The secretary dismissed the stenographer who sat beside him, bade the orderly go outside and close the door, and he and Greenleaf were left alone.

"How is the German cipher going?" the secretary demanded.

Greenleaf explained the sudden outburst of radio activity. The secretary looked perturbed.

"What does that mean?" he asked.

"Probably," said Greenleaf, "the Germans have acquired a lot of information from some source. At the front, unusual radio activity spells trouble. I can only hope that if they've got a bunch of facts, they are not vital. There's just this much that's hopeful; we've got more to go on than we had and have just that much better chance of cracking the cipher."

"You're convinced of that?" the secretary demanded.

"Convinced that we'll read it right away?" Greenleaf asked. "No. I'm more hopeful than I was, that's all."

The secretary got up and paced nervously to and fro.

"You realize the crucial importance of the next few days?" he asked. "At any moment now, the transports will be ready. We can't delay them. I need not tell you how important the arrival of American troops in France is to the Allies. It's not a question wholly, or even chiefly, of their military value. It's a question of morale. Their safe arrival will immensely strengthen the confidence of the Allies and correspondingly weaken the Germans. Realize, too, that the Germans will do everything to prevent these troops from arriving. A disaster now would be, perhaps, irreparable. Later, once troops are arriving in numbers, the loss of a transport or two would mean comparatively little. But now! And with our secrecy of operation, upon the reliability of our communications everything depends."

His kindly face broke into a smile.

"So you see, you're an important person, Mr. Greenleaf."

JOCKO — Jocko. Does he like peanuts? we asked, making friendly overtures to the hairy monkey perched on the shoulder of a very small, and very proud little boy. His name's not Jocko, it's Ghandi," announced the young keeper of monkeys with emphasis.

Indian monkey anything but Ghandi? — He has just been brought from India, and the cold north-west is the future home of Ghandi and Mother. The children had brought him out for his daily airing in the back yard. Ghandi was willing to perform. He had a paper bag through which he turned somersaults, and into which he crawled for very few very still moments, only to leap wildly into the air with monkeyish gyrations.

The sight of a large paper bag's whirling about in mid air, and literally running across the lot caused much delight. He would emerge and then for one of the lettuce leaves or the heart of cabbage addressed by an interested young Miss who coaxed "Here Ghandi. Here Ghandi" . . . as if he were a dog.

Ghandi had other stunts, the remains of the cabbage were pinned to the clothes line and he went after it, hand over hand just like a —well, just like a monkey. It was a tough heart — but very hard work and Ghandi took it in both hands and ate quite prettily, the rest of his light little body swinging pendulously into nothing. There were squeals of delight, and Ghandi, although he didn't really need any assistance, was helped down from the clothes line in triumph. "He bites," one of the youngsters was proudly exhibiting a small scar on his hand. — He didn't blame him. His enthusiastic young playmates deserved a nip now and then.

From a soft leather strap buckled around his little back a long chain held Ghandi in tow. He was a very pleasant little monkey, without any nasty scratchy habits to be got his hot bath every Saturday night. Such a wise little face. Too human . . . He knows far more, we are certain, than many of the interested spectators who plain him, and such as way-back grandparents. How long Ghandi would have performed we can only hazard a guess, for it was around six o'clock and motherly heads appeared in doorways while motherly voices summoned the young fry to dinner. "Let's eat," was the general cry. "Good night, Ghandi."

PRESIDENT DISCUSSES LAW OF LIFE

The absorbing problem of the nature of life and of the ultimate composition of living material was discussed by Dr. Wallace, president of the University, in a lecture to new students in Convocation Hall Wednesday.

A universal law of the world is the urge to maintain and perpetuate life, Dr. Wallace pointed out, the struggle to preserve life which has demanded and resulted in, the rmic characteristics of mobility and adaptability. Man has done his part in changing the living world, and in the future man's part has been the solace of genetics which has endeavored to make use of the laws of heredity.

Biologicel workers are concerned, he said, with the problem as to how "life" arose. This problem eventually can be explained by the laws of physics or chemis'ry. However, most scientists he said though accepting some such explanation as a working hypothesis for further research are willing to concede that there is something further which cannot as yet be explained in terms of tingible matter.

Artists Of Spain Will Dance Here

TONIA DE ARAGON and JOSE ANSINO

exotic Spanish dancers from old Spain, who will give a performance in Edmonton, under the sponsorship of the Junior Hospital League in the Empire theatre on Monday evening, November 25. Opportunities in Edmonton to see such artists have been few so that it is with keen interest anticipation that the recital of these performers, famed in Europe and America, the study of her native home dances, is enhanced in performance by the extraordinary talent for interpreting their varying moods. Vivid beauty, coquette, she has all the charm and witchery of her people with the exotic glamour that is old Spain. She designs her own costumes which is just another gift to her native talents. Jose Cansino, her partner was born in Spain where he also received his early training.

O'Neil Play Has Good Response

No one could say that the cast of "Ah Wilderness," Eugene O'Neill's comedy presented by the Edmonton Little Theatre in the Empire on Saturday evening, didn't put all their ability into the exciting dramatic requirements of a long, long play. The full house which greeted the performance in the Empire Theatre, was responsive to the comedy which was built on a story of family life, and well appreciative of the several outstanding bits of fine acting.

There was Richard Locke, who as the young man, played by Richard Millar, played a part that might be called a testament to youth, and expressed with such sensitiveness and convincing intensity that at times had a deeper pull, than mere sentiment around Richard the action centered, he might himself one day refer to his first great crisis of love's old sweet song!, this time of first love, and disillusion. His scenes with the very perplexing behaviour, makes up the rest of the story, four acts of it.

Belle Kelly Miller, was played by Naomi Lang, a heavy role for one of the younger members of the cast, but proved her ability to sustain character, and in which she proved that ability. The part might be called the "Every mother" type of a certain social strata of America. She was all concern for the idiosyncrasies of her children, such as their appetites and their public behaviour, which were more within her ken than their spiritual tempests.

Mid Miller, the father, played by Max Wershof, was thoroughly good, and a stellar bit of acting in a small part was that of Aubrey Proctor as David McComber.

Charles F. Sweetlove as Sid Davis—with a wreath for his drinks—brought experience to his part, which was the comedy role of the play. Then there was Belle, the woman of the street, a part undertaken by Hazel Cristall.

Gwen Pratt, to whose entrance the audience long looked forward, was the "Muriel" of the play, and her scene with Richard Millar's delicacy of romance and a poignant appeal to emotion, was the high-light of the production.

The beauty of the moonlight setting was a charming background for the scene, which was quite the outstanding part of the play . . . its freshness soothing after the hot room demonstration.

Others of the cast included Pat Folinsbee, Bob Folinsbee, Clare Reid, Helen Chalmers—a thoroughly well sustained role as Lily Miller—Mary Hannah, Mrs. Nelson Haynes, Helmer Hober and Alan Macdonald.

"Ah Wilderness" is comedy only in so far as it has a happy end'ng the traditional requisite for comedy, tender humor and truth ered the humor, for it was an extremely long play for such a simple story.

Elizabeth Sterling Haynes drew scenes that were appropriate to action here, for the Edmonton Little Theatre is the first amateur company to attempt the production, and the force of Mrs. Haynes' direction was strongly marked throughout.

Costumes were arranged by Mrs. Morton Hall, Mrs. G. D. Gunn, and Mrs. Kenneth Hamilton; the properties, by Margaret Dinning and Mrs. Gerald O'Connor, and make-up by Harvey Kagna and Theodore Cohen.

Hallowe'en Food Is For Hungry Man

No matter how ghostly the accompaniments of Hallowe'en, appetites are real these chilly evenings and spirit food alone will not satisfy your guests! It is a wise hostess who plans refreshments which are novel, but not too fanciful. For All Saints Eve is the one evening in all the year when smart modernity is thrown aside for customs prankish and perhaps a bit upsetting.

To fit in with the traditional orange and black color scheme for this celebration of medieval origin some orange recipes have been assembled which may be served at dinner, or the ever popular buffet supper. You might like to start refreshments with a note of mock solemnity played by an Owl salad.

OWL SALAD

Peel and slice an orange. Moisten cream cheese with orange juice. For the body of the owl arrange, sandwich fashion on a bed of lettuce, two slices of orange with cream cheese spread between. Place half slices of orange on each side for the wings. Another slice makes the head. Shape round eyes from cream cheese making the centers from pieces of pimento. The beak and eyebrows also are cut from a prune. The feet are little squares of orange on a piece of bacon.

For dessert we suggest this glorified upside-down-cake called:

DRUID'S DELIGHT

Three tbsp. butter, ¾ cup brown sugar, apples, walnuts, 1-3 cup butter, 2-3 cup sugar, 2 eggs, 1½ cups flour, 2 tsp. baking powder, ½ tsp. salt, ½ cup fruit juice.

Melt butter and brown sugar in baking pan and arrange apples and nuts in mixture. Cream butter and sugar thoroughly and add well beaten yolks. Mix and sift dry ingredients and add to creamed mixture alternately with fruit juice. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and pour batter over fruit mixture. Bake in moderate oven at 350 degrees F. for 1 minute. Unmold and serve with whipped cream.

During the evening which was arranged by Mrs. Buckham, Mrs. J. W. Martin was the presidential guest, and was met by Mrs. Kyle, Mrs. Giffin, Mrs. D. L. Campbell and Mrs. Wheeler took the devotional period. It was announced at the meeting that Mrs. Nellie McClung will lecture on Friday, October 31, in McDougall church. The fall Presbyterial meeting will be held in Knox church on October 30 and a missionary pageant is being prepared under the direction of Mrs. Haynes, it was announced in conclusion.

Corbett and Mrs. Joseph Clarke, while in the evening Mrs. William Aberhart presided. Mrs. Aberhart had with her as her guest, Mrs. Wright of Calgary. Mrs. Greenough, president of the choir, received, assisted by Mr. D. W. Vaughan, honorary president, and members of the choir and executive. The table was prettily decorated with a large bouquet of yellow baby mums, silver and crystal. Guests were entertained in the afternoon by vocal solos from Miss Sanford and Mrs. L. Williams, and in the evening by Mrs. J. Bissell, Miss J. MacLaren, Mrs. Greenough, Mr. Mitchell, and Mr. Roland. The accompanists were Miss G. Walton, and Mr. David Vaughan.

Brains Are Far More Important Than Backs

DEAR MISS DIX—I am 24 and have been married almost a year. Before I was married I did stenographic work and liked it very much, but gave up my position when I married. I have a fine husband whom I love and who is good to me.

Dorothy Dix

I have a nice home, but at times I get very restless. Domesticity gets monotonous and I become very depressed. I feel pinned down and that there is not enough excitement in keeping house or cooking to keep me interested. Since I have been married I have taken several temporary positions and as soon as I did I lost the depressed and restless feeling, but when I did, I couldn't keep up my housework and we had to eat out. My husband thinks it makes a happier marriage if the wife stays at home. Perhaps it does, but I don't know anything about cooking or domestic work and pine for my old job. What can I do to get over this restless feeling and find life interesting again? PUZZLED.

Answer: Have a baby. Nature supplies the remedy for idle women. When you have a youngster to love and pet, feed, bathe and dress, and who will keep you on the jump every minute of the day and half the night, you will not complain that time hangs heavy on your hands, or that you are bored because you have nothing exciting and interesting to do.

Your reaction to your present situation is perfectly natural. Every business woman who gives up her job and gets married feels this same way at first. She has been used to an ordered life in which every minute had its scheduled task. In her own little new home her time is her own. Nothing presses. She can do as she pleases with her time. She has been accustomed to working in a group, to the excitement of people coming and going, to the thrill of new projects being launched, new campaigns put through. Perhaps she has been the right hand of her boss, who controlled a great enterprise. Now she helps decide no more important question than whether there shall be roast beef or chops for dinner. Perhaps she has been a buyer who spent thousands of dollars in a single transaction. Now she buys 10 cents worth of stew meat and half an apple pie.

One successful business woman who had been the brains of a department in a large store and who gave up her position to go domestic when she married, explained the situation by saying to me: "To put me to take care of a six-room apartment, furnished with every modern gadget for labor saving, is like putting a 1000-horsepower engine to lift a one-horsepower weight. It is a waste of energy. I have been taught system and efficiency. I do all my work in an hour and then I don't know what to do with my time."

In your particular case, and while you are waiting for the baby to solve your problem for you, I urge you to try to regard home-making as a profession and not as a chore. If you do, you will find that housework is just as interesting and exciting as office work and that you can be just as big of a kick out of it.

It is because most women only put their backs and not their brains nor their hearts into housework that they find it drudgery. They never learn how to cook, so they never find out that it takes skill and artistry and fancy and imagination to make a dish that delights the taste and the eye and the stomach. They never learn how to buy so as to get the most out of a dollar, or how, on a limited budget, so they never find out that a housewife needs to be as good a judge of commodities as any purchasing agent and as much of a financier as any banker.

They never think of making a home that is a place of rest for tired men who come to eat an evening and for children to grow up in in an atmosphere of peace and comfort and order and love, as the greatest work that any woman can ever set her hand to, and so they miss the real reward of their labor.

Believe me, my dear, if you will go at your housekeeping in the right spirit, you will find it one of the most interesting and absorbing of occupations, and if you make a success of it you will have acquired one of the most profitable professions that any woman can follow it she needs to make her living.

And your husband is right when he says that it make for the happiness of marriage for the wife to stay in the home. For the very good reason that no woman can be a competent housewife and a competent business woman at the same time. Either job takes all she has.

What's What

Question—I am to be engaged on my birthday—near the Christmas holidays. My parents would like to give a party announcing my engagement, but they do not know how to go about it. What kind of invitation should be issued—telephone, note or personal calls? Kindly give form of invitation. We should like to surprise the guests who do not know of the engagement. How long before the dance should the invitations be mailed? When does my fiance give me the ring? I know what refreshments to serve and what decorations to use. Since I am the only child, of course, we have never had any such party; hence my appeal to you. LORETTO ANN.

Answer—The conventional method is to mail cards at least two weeks in advance of the date. Usually these are the Mr. and Mrs. cards of the parents, with the cards of daughter and fiancee inclosed. On the parental card the date and hours are written thus: "Wed. Dec. 18, 9 P.M." Underneath the date is the word, "Dancing." In a surprise engagement the fiance stands in the receiving line with his fiancee and her mother, who introduces him in his new role. (In that case only the parental card is sent to friends.) The ring is placed on the engagement finger before the arrival of guests.

A. A.—(1) Wedding announcements require no acknowledgment. (2) A cordial note should be written to a house-party hostess, accepting her invitation or regretting inability to accept it because of other engagements.

A BEDTIME STORY

Story by HAL. COCHRAN Pictures by GEORGE SCARBO

"Well, everything turned out all right," said little Dotty Tinymite. "Gee, when the lightning hit our gas bag, I thought we were done."

"Your parachute has saved the day. Again we're on our merry way. We'll all forget about our scare and plan, now, on some fun."

"A good idea," Duncy said, "but I look behind and look ahead. All I see can see is clouds. There's nothing else that's near at hand.

"'Twill be monotonous I fear, if we just float around up here. Why wouldn't it be better to find some nice place to land?"

"It would," replied the balloon man. "I was just about to say I'd try to put some of the chule cords so we'd settle toward the ground.

"I've seen chule jumpers do it and I'm sure that I can make us land. We want to find a nice place, though. You Tinies gaze around."

Just then were Goldy shouted "Hey! Look what is heading right our way. Why, it's a woman on a broom. She's waving at us, too."

The woman then came very near and cried, "What are you doing here?" "Just riding 'round," said Windy. "Kindly tell us, who are you?"

* * *

"Why, I'm the witch of Hallowe'en. You are the first lots I have seen since nineteen-thirty-four. Why don't you come and call on me?"

"I live at Pumpkin Land, below, and that's just where I'm going to go. Come on, let's drop together and some nice tights you will see."

The balloon man smiled and said, "Okay. We'll follow, if you lead the way. Remember, though, our basket may be rather hard to land."

"I'll get there first," the witch replied. "And then I'll rush up to your side, when you get right down close to earth, where I can lend a hand."

(The Tinies reach Pumpkin Land in the next story).

Five Rules End Mind Planning Dilemma

Windross, who are leaving shortly to reside in Saskatoon, members of the executive of the Orkney, Shetland and Caithness Society and their wives were guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. Bechan at their home this week. Music was arranged for the evening, when Mr. Bechan played violin selections and later refreshments were served.

Plans were made for the Hallowe'en concert and social which will take place in All Saints parish hall on Friday evening, November 1, when all sorts of special novelties will add to the usual fun of the occasion.

Those present at the affair were Mr. and Mrs. George B. Windwick, Miss Scherff, Miss Brock, Mr. and Mrs. James Scott, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Johnstone, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Thomson, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Miller, Mr. Peter Gunn, Mr. William Harcus.

By MARY E. DUGUE

Here's a column for the fall bride who may be having some bad moments just now with her meal problems. If it's a twice-told tale to the still won't hurt you to be reminded once more.

There are five hard - and - fast rules for feeding the family. First they must have a balanced diet. That is, unless the members are dieting under a doctor's supervision, they must have protein, carbohydrates and fats in definite proportions. This does not necessarily mean that each day must be rigidly accurate on these points but certainly over a month, the balance must be kept.

The minimum caloric requirement for a day for adults is twelve calories for each pound of body weight. Children require more food in proportion to their weight than adults.

WORK GUIDES VARIATIONS

Physically active persons need more fuel or calories than those of sedentary habits. However, the proportional distribution of calories remains about the same—ten to fifteen per cent should be protein, twenty-five per cent fat and the remaining sixty to sixty-five per cent carbohydrates.

The second rule concerns mineral constituents. There should be calcium, phosphorous, iron, iodine, copper and other minerals in every meal.

Third, there must be protective foods. That means those rich in vitamins such as fruits and green vegetables.

Fourth, calculate a pint of milk for each adult and a quart of milk for each child daily.

Finally every meal should contain something crisp and chewy for the sake of the teeth.

With the exception of a few concentrated foods such as sugar, several elements are found in all foods. Vegetables which are primarily sources of starch and sugar—carbohydrates—also supply mineral salts and vitamins.

If you're in a salad with eggs or some other protein food in it, you can cut down on the meat course. Or such a combination is splendid for luncheon as the main dish. Begin the noon-meal with a cup of hot bouillon and finish with an old-fashioned bread pudding.

CHEF'S SALAD

Four hard boiled eggs, 4 medium sized tomatoes, leaf lettuce, well bleached chickory. Ferench dressing.

Tomorrow's Menu

BREAKFAST: Stewed quinces, cereal cooked with raisins, cream, crisp toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON: Creamed Spanish onions with croutons, carrot sticks, cranberry sponge, sugar cookies, milk, tea.

DINNER: Baked noodles and diced left-over veal pot roast, creamed new cabbage, chef's salad, ogilvie cake with canned peaches, milk, coffee.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By E. V. Shepard

"Teacher of Teachers"

SUBSTITUTE FOR DECLARER

Before going home to dinner many men drop into their clubs for a game of contract. In case they are commuters frequently a substitute is required to finish the rubber to enable a player to catch his regular train. I was asked to substitute for East in such a case, with dummy already spread and the 9 of spades the opening lead. I asked that bidding be repeated for my benefit.

	♠K Q J 10 8 5 ♥7 6 ♦9 8 ♣J 9 8
♠A 7 3 2 ♥A K 4 ♦K 6 ♣A K 3	N. W. E. S.	♠None ♥Q J 5 2 ♦Q 7 4 3 ♣Q 7 6 4 2
	♠9 6 4 ♥10 9 8 3 ♦J 10 5 ♣Q 10 5

Bidding had gone West, 2 no trumps; North, 3 spades; East 4 diamonds; West, 4 no trumps; East, 5 hearts; West, 5 no trumps; East, 6 diamonds; West 7 diamonds, as being worth more than a small slam at no trumps, with 130 points for aces. It surely would be worth more, provided the contract could be fulfilled. How to make a grand slam was the burning question. If you have to glance twice at the bidding in a double-dummy proposition you will realize that I had to look many times at the cards before I declared. I played dummy's ace of spades and discarded my lowest club. North played his K of spades. All I knew was that North evidently held 5 or 6 more spades, while his partner as evidently did not hold 4 or more trumps, as he would have doubled had he held more than 3 including J-10-9-X or any similar combination. How hearts and clubs were split was only a guess. There seemed only one way to play the hand by any event.

Both opponents followed suit on leads of dummy's ace and K of trumps. Both of them followed suit on leads of dummy's two winning clubs, leaving unplaced the Q-J of that suit.

Both defenders followed suit on leads of dummy's ace and K of hearts. When North discarded the lowest spade on the third lead of hearts the missing J of diamonds was definitely located in South's hand, also that player held both missing cards of fortunately for East and West.

Of course dummy's low club was discarded on my fourth heart. Then South followed suit on a heart and last which dummy ruffed. North's last club also fell. The discard of my lowest club on dummy's 4th of spades had done me no good. I could have twice ruffed spades, still picked up South's third trump and led off my established baby club for the thirteenth trick, but such an attempt would have been foolhardy, like the 7-diamonds' contract.

After dummy's last trump had been used to ruff a club at the tenth trick I held for my last 3 cards only the Q-7-4 of trumps, while South had 2 spades and the J of trumps. I ruffed a low spade. Picked up the only missing trump with my Q and showed my last trump for the thirteenth trick and grand slam.

HOLLYHOCKS HAVE NO CONNECTION WITH HOLLY

From its name, many persons infer that hollyhock is in some way related to holly or to the oak. It has no relation to either, etymologically. Hock means mallow; and when the plant was first brought to England from the Holy Land, it was called Holy-Hock, or Holy Mallow. In time, this came to be written "hollyhock." This flower is sometimes called by other names, such as rose-mallow and outre-mer rose. The plant is a native of China. It is very hardy and showy, and is grown extensively in many parts of the world and is quite hardy.

Prepare Your Hair For New Permanent

By GLADYS GLAD

The ancient Assyrians, I am told, had a neat way of putting a curl into their tresses. They would wind their hair on sticks and plaster on mud, to set the waves. And when the mud was dry, they would knock it off, leaving their locks in tight coils. These mud-plaster curls, of course, were only temporary. The process had to be repeated frequently. And it was a pretty messy job at best. But the Assyrian belles would have their curls and ringlets, regardless of what they had to go through to obtain them.

We moderns are much more fortunate. The girl today who craves curls simply goes to a good beauty shop and gets a permanent. And if it's a good one, she doesn't have to worry about her curl's again until her wave has all grown out. It is at this time of the year, however, that many women plan to procure new permanents in preparation for the fall and winter season. And so it is at this time that they should begin reconditioning their tresses. For the success of a permanent wave depends greatly on the condition of the hair. If the hair is dandruffy, thin, dry or brittle, the wave may not only turn out unsuccessfully, but may aggravate any present hair ills.

HEALTHY HAIR TAKE BEST

To really take a successful permanent, the hair must be vibrant with life and health. The permanent waving process is somewhat drying to the hair, but if a girl prepares her tresses properly for the reception of the wave, no good permanent should prove in any way harmful.

It really isn't especially costly for a woman to recondition her hair herself, if she uses her head, or all the various brushing, massaging, reconditioning and shampooing treatments necessary are fully outlined in my "Beauty Culture" booklet, and they are most effective for putting the hair into good condition for the reception of a satisfactory permanent wave.

Of course, in addition to preparing her hair properly, every girl should insist upon having a test curl made before the actual waving is done, as a test curl determines the reaction of the hair to the waving process and insures the success of the wave.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Eyelashes

Dora: Apply a bit of plain vaseline or odorless castor oil to your lashes nightly before retiring. This will help to promote their growth and thickness.

Complexion

Peggy: Full information on the eradication of pimples, blackheads, enlarged pores and freckles is contained in my "Beauty Culpore" booklet. This booklet also gives many excellent makeup hints, and advice on double chin eradication.

SALMON LOAF

One pound can salmon, two cups soft bread crumbs, liquor drained from salmon plus evaporated milk to make one cup, two tablespoons salt, one egg, pepper. Flake salmon with a fork. Add remaining ingredients. Turn into oiled baking pan. Bake in a moderate oven 1350 degrees F. until firm and brown, about 40 minutes. Serves six.

The newest way to wear flowers in your hair is to pin them at the back in the form of a brick so that they rest on turbulent loose curls. This is an evening mode, of course. We recommend gardenias as the best of coiffure flowers.

What To Do

My friends are always amused because I persist in shaking hands when introduced. They say I am old-fashioned and that hand-shaking went out with fainting and other early Victorian customs. Are they right? PUZZLED.

Answer—No, indeed, it is never old-fashioned to extend a cordial greeting, and one can express as much personality in a handshake. Men always shake hands when introduced; whether a lady shakes hands with a man is purely a personal matter with her, though she should always shake hands with another lady. Old friends usually shake hands on meeting. It is always a nice courtesy for a young man or woman to shake hands with an older man or woman, or for an older woman to offer her hand to a younger person who might be a bit shy about taking the initiative.

Your Children -

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

A young fellow sixteen, he was) came to his mother and, with the expression of a bank president signing a million-dollar loan, said:

"Mother, I like Mary better than anyone I ever knew. I want to know where she is every minute. Do you suppose I'm in love with her?"

His mother answered quite as seriously. "Why, it just might be, John, if you feel that way. How old is Mary?"

O. R. Barton

"I think she is about eighteen. She's awfully nice to me. I look about eighteen, don't I?"

The lady surveyed her boy almost scraping the top door jamb. He was big enough to be forty, but that round face was exactly sixteen and no more. Nevertheless, he had come to her and bared his heart, something that a chap that age seldom does, for sixteen is the age of agony at no other time in life is one so given to hurt and shame over imaginary troubles.

DANGEROUS MOMENT

To have smiled or taken a light tone she knew would have blasted this sacred seedling of confidence. Her baby had come for advice and help as he would have a few years before, oh, so few, for a smashed finger.

Fortunately, she knew something about this Mary, a steady, serious girl to be depended on. Quickly she made her plan. "You are a big boy, she said to her son, "but if I were you, I would not pose as being older. Mary knows you are a sophomore. You don't want her to think you are too dumb to be a senior."

"Would he be all right if I went to see her? Would she think I was silly?"

"No, indeed. Go over some afternoon after school and stay a few minutes. But I wouldn't tell her how you feel about her. She will know you like her very much without you saying anything at all. Just be nice and polite, and don't be in a hurry."

When he was gone his mother picked up the telephone, then put it down. There was something too sacred about the boy's confidence to spill over the telephone to Mary's mother, as she had first planned in order to get her co-operation. She did not know whether to laugh or cry about it, first love, calf love, is no precious a thing to the young.

RELATIONSHIP WORTH KEEPING

She knew Bob would be falling in and out of love, as he called it, for the next ten years. She wanted him to tell her things—as much as he cared to tell her—in that time. Maybe he would handle this wrong, but after all, it was his own affair. She suspected that Mary was on a par with his football team; that actually if he had to choose, Mary would be waiting on the doorstep.

He had come to her as he would to his own conscience. His mother was his other self. He had not asked her not to tell his father. She decided she wouldn't. Just her self and Bob in on their little secret. Bob is married now, and not to Mary. He is a successful young business man in Chicago. His mother read me a scrap of a letter from him the other day.

"Mother, you have helped me more by your wisdom and silence than anything else. It's grand to know where there is one sphinx in the world."

Which is just one more thing we mothers have to learn; to keep sacred the confidences of our children whenever it is possible.

Roaming Halibut Checked

TATTOOED ON FINNY CHEEKS THEN FREED

Meanderings Take Them Vast Distances Over Many Years

VICTORIA, Oct. 28.—Tattooing the cheeks of Pacific halibut to trace their wanderings is working out well, George J. Alexander, deputy British Columbia fisheries commission, confided Sunday. Already the International fisheries commission has its eyes on several roaming members of the halibut tribe that have wandered hundreds of miles off the home reservation, only to fall for a gaudy lure.

SALEABLE AT 14

Hatched from eggs laid in a moving ocean current that flows northward from British Columbia, to the Gulf of Alaska, baby halibut have to swim home against the tide. In 14 years the "chicks" or young halibut, pass out of the adolescent stage and become good commercial fish. In 50 years they are greybeards of the race, nodding gently in gossipy seclusion on the sheltered banks of the north Pacific area

ROAM FREELY

In youth and in vigorous middle age, however, the halibut roam freely, being found at times 200 miles from their home banks. It is to trace these movements, which affect commercial fishing, that the commission some years ago adopted a policy of catching specimen fish and fixing tags to them for identification purposes.

Now tattooing takes the place of tags, and neat geometrical designs are needled into the cheeks of the fish.

Early or late, halibut return to the waters in which they were born, existing records show. The exceptions, of course, are those that fall for a line.

More than 50,000 U.S. grocers have gone out of business annually since 1929. Slightly less than that number have started up in the same period.

College Professor Starts Spencer Tracy On His Film Career

This is the last of a series of life stories by 12 noted movie stars which have appeared in the Edmonton Bulletin.

Spencer Tracy

SPENCER TRACY

LIONEL Barrymore says that when a man starts to write his autobiography, it's a sign of approaching old age—and hence I wouldn't be doing this, even for my friend Dan Cupid, if I weren't sure that it doesn't apply in my case. That's the Irish blood in me.

Behind my father, John Tracy, are many Irish generations. My mother was of old Colonial stock, dating back to the Revolution. Which makes me something or other, but I've never taken time to find out what.

I was born in Milwaukee, April 5, in an old house on Prospect avenue. As a youngster I guess I was pretty nearly as bad as all the others in the neighborhood.

When I was 7 I began to show signs of wanderlust—and wandered out of the neighborhood. I met two kids, called "Mousie" and "Rattie," and we played in an alley behind the saloon where their father was a barkeep.

That was enough for my folks—and they packed me off to school. I tried my best there, but just couldn't get interested. I was all right in athletics, though.

WHEN I was sixteen we moved to Kansas City, where I attended St. Mary's. Then we moved back to Milwaukee and I finished up at West Side High school. It all seemed a little silly to me. I thought I had had enough education.

The war came, and I tried to enlist in the Marine Corps. But they found out I was only 17. Then, I learned that they'd take me in the navy, so I enlisted there.

Mother hated the idea—but after all, what else was a fellow with Irish and Colonial blood in him to do. My dad understood, and gave me his blessing.

After the war, my father insisted that I go to Marquette Military Academy, and from this institution I went to Northwestern Military Academy. Then came two years at Ripon College.

FIRST AS DEBATER

THAT was where I met Professor Boody—who really pointed my nose in the direction of a career. He made me join his debating club. Strangely enough, I found I liked it. That developed the urge to act—and at last I saw something ahead that I really wanted to do.

Father thought it was silly, but agreed to let me try it, and I entered the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York. I was getting $30 a month pension from the navy. I managed to live on it. Sometimes, toward the end of the month, I ate pretzels and rice and water—but for once in my life I really worked.

Then, one day when my check hadn't come and I was broke, I went to the Theater Guild and applied for a job. I don't know just why they gave it to me.

My first appearance was in "R.U.R." at a salary of $15 a week—of which I had drawn eating money in advance. I took to it apparently. Soon I was making $40 a week and feeling like a star.

MORE JOBS, HIGHER PAY

THEN the play closed. I got a job with Leonard Wood, Jr., stock players in White Plains, N.Y.

INTERVENTION IS PLEDGED IN WIDE ZONES

Positive Measures to Make Course Satisfactory to Japanese

SHANGHAI, Oct. 28—New Japanese pressure on the Nanking government and possible intervention, not only in the north, but also at other points was anticipated Sunday by observers in international circles here and in Peiping.

Latest developments at various key points were reported as follows:—

1—In Hsinking, capital of Manchuria, the Imperial Kwantung army announced its intention of intervening in North China to re-establish peace and order, to eliminate the Kuomintang once and for all from control, to counter the danger of the Red armies from Sheniu and Soviet influence from Mongolia and to compel the Nanking government to "positive measures" to follow a course satisfactory to the Japanese.

NO TROOP MOVES

2—In Tokyo war office spokesmen indicated the Chinese would not be permitted to move troops into the demilitarized zone to deal with the autonomist movement now gaining ground there.

3—In North China Gen. Shang Chen, governor of Hopei province, had sent down into the troubled area around Haikwan. He received orders from Nanking, according to Japanese reports, to do nothing about the autonomy movement without first consulting the Japanese general staff at Tientsin.

PRESSES DEMANDS

4—In Nanking the conviction was growing that Japan intends to take the occasion of the forthcoming plenary session of the central executive committee of the Kuomintang to press its ultimate demands and extend its sphere of action.

I jumped to Cincinnati for $50 a week, and, in the meantime, of course, kept a weather eye on New York. I got a job in Ethel Barrymore's "Royal Fandango" company.

After this and a few stock companies, I went back to the Theater Guild, no longer an apprentice. We put on "Baby Cyclone," "Whispering Friends," "Dread," "Conflict," and "The Last Mile." I played Killer Means in the latter, and that really started me off. It was a great part.

In fact, that's how I got on the screen. I played my first screen role in "Down the River." There have been a lot since—"Quick Millions," "Disorderly Conduct," "The Power and the Glory," "Sky Devils," "Shanghai Madness"—plenty of them.

Then Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer signed me on to a long-term contract. My first picture was "Murder Man," and now I'm to do "Riff Raff" with Jean Harlow.

I play polo rather well, I have a San Bernando valley ranch, and raise chickens, turkeys, and children. I find a lot of joy in family life, and a lot of joy in my work and in Hollywood.

AMUSEMENTS

CAPITOL

The battle of the century is on at the Capitol theatre where Fox Film's "Steamboat Round the Bend" presents Will Rogers and Irvin S. Cobb in a hilarious, high-comedy rivalry that is tops for the season's film offerings. This picture, the last made by the great humorist, will be shown all this week until Friday.

"Steamboat Round the Bend" is warm in sentiment, rich in characterizations, replete with thrills and reveals Rogers in a new and more human light—in what is probably the greatest role of his career.

As captain of the "Claremore Queen," a ramshackle old tub, Rogers is involved in the romance of Anne Shirley and John McGuire. Their happiness is threatened when McGuire kills a man in the girl's defence, gives himself up on Rogers' advice and is condemned.

Of course, the girl and Will Rogers blame each other for the boy's plight, but their desire to help him draws them together in a rich friendship. While they strive to earn enough money to pay for his appeal, Rogers in indulging in his old rivalry with crusty Irvin S. Cobb, certain of the shiny "The Pride of Paducah."

The two dramatic currents blend when Rogers steams down to New Orleans to save McGuire and is involved in the big steamboat race. The climax, packed with suspense and explosive comedy, brings the film to a happy conclusion.

In the leading role, Rogers tops the best of his previous performances. Anne Shirley is unusually effective in the romantic lead and round, jovial Irvin Cobb lives up to his reputation as one of the funniest men in America.

RIALTO

Featuring Ralph Bellamy and Tala Birell, "Air Hawks" continues on at the Rialto Theatre, where it is holding forth on a three day run.

Presenting a much-discussed method of destruction, which is likely to be used in future wars, "Air Hawks" shows a death-dealing electric ray which can cause airplanes to burn in mid-air. It is an important motivating force in the film.

Ralph Bellamy is cast as the owner of an airplane line that is competing with another company for lucrative airmail contracts.

The rival line is desperate for the contracts, though it is flourishing better than that of Bellamy's. It employs a mad scientist, who has perfected the death-ray, to bring down Bellamy's planes, causing the public and the government to lose faith in Bellamy's line.

Dealing with the high adventures and doings of two newsreel cameramen in a competitive fight with another company "Ladies Crave Excitement" sound feature playing at the Rialto, has been conceded to be the very heart story of the men who make the nation's newsreels.

STRAND

Following close on the highly successful offering of the Strand theatre's new vaudeville bookings last week, another strong stage unit arrives at the Strand today with new acts and entirely new personnel, all direct from the east. They will play here today, Tuesday and Wednesday with Jack Rundall and company, adagiosts extraordinary, heading the capable bill. Earl Gray's Singing Band is a show in itself. At first in his novelty act proves himself a versatile entertainer with a strong flair for comedy, while the other artists all give a good account of themselves in the various acts. Scenically the production is the last word in class. The screen feature is "The Goose and the Gander," starring Kay Francis and Dixie Lee, while coming Thursday, Laurel and Hardy's new feature comedy, "Bonnie Scotland," will be the main attraction.

FISH-GAME LEAGUE CONCLUDES ACTIVE CONVENTION

Ask Government For $2,000 Grant To Further Work

Busy Agenda Winds Up With Banquet at Corona—Next Meet at Red Deer.

The eighth annual Alberta Fish and Game League conference will be held in Red Deer next year, it was decided Saturday at the League convention held in the Corona hotel. This year's executive will carry on for another year. The executive consists of: president, H. L. Wyman, Edson; vice-president, L. E. Winn, Edmonton; second vice-president, L. E. Fairbairn, Lethbridge and George M. Spargo, secretary-treasurer.

The afternoon session of the convention was devoted entirely to the discussion and adoption of resolutions submitted by various local leagues throughout the province. The most important resolutions dealt with the establishment of permanent game wardens, financial policy, co-operation with other provinces and the Indians and the game act. The re-alignment of locals also was discussed.

ORGANIZATION CHANGES

The proposed re-alignment calls for a fundamental change in the organization of the Alberta Fish and Game League. Hitherto the locals have at all times communicated directly with the parent organization. The new scheme provides for 10 district organizations geographically distributed throughout the province. These districts would have several locals under them and would keep in touch with the locals, forwarding all matters of importance to the central executive.

In this way a re-distribution of detailed work would occur, leaving the central executive free to deal with matters of general policy. Hitherto the detailed work has fallen on the general executive and particularly on the secretary treasurer. The whole question of realignment and consolidation of locals under district grouping has been left in the hands of the re-elected executive.

ASK GOVT. AID

On the question of finances it was decided to submit a request to the government for an allotment of $2,000 to carry on the work of the association. It was pointed out that the association does a great deal in regard to promoting conservation of game and fish in the province and the money would be wisely spent in that improved opportunities to hunt game would increase tourist traffic. Also the presence of bird life throughout the province is of interest to the public whether they be hunters or not.

The resolution calling for the establishment of permanent game wardens was heartily endorsed by the members of the league. At the present time there cannot be the close and necessary check-up on hunters in connection with the fish limits. Until some permanent form of check-up in every district is established, the work of game conservation will be greatly hindered.

In this regard the delegates were loud in their praise of the splendid work the R. C. M. P. have done. They felt, however, that if wardens would mean a step forward in game conservation.

RENEW ACTIVITY

In the matter of co-operation the resolutions called for an increase of activity with other provinces in the game campaign, the conservation of game and fish, the determination of bag limits, the establishment of reciprocity arrangements on license fees and the co-ordination of work by the development of some form of centralization such as a weekly Canada game and fish magazine or annual conventions. The fact that Saskatchewan sent Inspector E. A. Bence to the Alberta convention was an encouraging sign, the members felt.

The Indian and Game Act resolutions dealt with the question of interviewing the government to have a closer enforcement of regulations regarding the Indian privileges of hunting. Indians have in some cases hunted off reserves. Also the organization would like to see further development in educating the Indians in game conservation.

DREDGING LAKES

Other resolutions dealt with the re-stocking of lakes with fish, the conservation of game, the forming of junior game and fish organizations, the co-ordination of the game

NO BOOST IN POWER RATES

The fact that Edmonton is now producing all its own electrical energy, having become independent of the Calgary Power Co. through discontinuance of the agreement between the city and company which expired October 1, will not result in an increase in taxation nor an advance in power rates here, city commissioners are reported to commit at its regular meeting, Monday night.

"Owing to the fact that the utilities are not only self-supporting but profit-producing, there could not be any increase in taxation whether the city owned the supply was wholly furnished by the steam plant or by steam-hydro. The net profits for the utilities are credited to the general revenue account and correspondingly reduce the general tax levy," commissioners report.

Dealing with power rates, commissioners point out that the city's present tariff rates for power and light service compare favorably with other electric light operating units "and there should be no occasion under any circumstances for an increase in these rates."

TAXIS CRASH AT CROSSING: CARS INJURED

Machine Making U-Turn At 107 St. Side-Swiped By Another

Snow-laden streets and poor visibility, caused by a steady fall of snow here all Sunday, made driving treacherous for motorists, but comparatively few accidents resulted from the adverse weather conditions.

The most serious mishap reported to police was on 107 street, in which two taxis crashed, excessive damage being done to both cars. First aid was not necessary for either William Graham or John Pederson, who were operating the cabs.

Graham, it is reported, was making a U turn at 107 street when the car driven by John Pederson crashed into the side, pivoting it completely around. Pederson was driving at an estimated speed of approximately 40 miles per hour when he side-swiped Graham's car, and although no one was seriously injured the impact caused heavy damage to both vehicles.

TWO PEDESTRIANS

Injuries to pedestrians who knocked down by cars were light over the week-end. Only two people were given first aid treatment and their injuries were only of a minor nature.

Robert Robertson, 9429 101 street suffered a badly injured knee when he was bowled over by a car at the intersection of 99 avenue and 101 street.

The only other pedestrian injured was Albert Logan, of St. Albert, who was struck by a car driven by Edward Belsborrow at the intersection of 101 avenue and 98 street. Logan was taken to hospital and was treated for bruises to his head.

The club is open every day and evening, daily except Sunday to all who care to use them, there is also comfortable lounge room and tables from on shopping trips to the city and a lady secretary is present at all times.

While this organization is not in any way connected with the Social Credit Central Council of Western Alberta, it is not a hostile body. They are also non-political but they endorse not only Premier Aberhart and his cabinet but also all members elect.

The officers are as follows: President, B. H. Ingram; secretary, Miss Mitchell; treasurer, J. P. Steele; vice-president, Walter L. White; business manager, Victor E. Thelin; and a board of directors.

PETTY CRIME ON WEEK-END

Week-end crime was scarce and only of a minor nature, according to police reports. Parts and merchandise were stolen from three cars, while the Queen's City Meat Market, 10166 100 street, reported their store broken into and the cash register and safe rifled.

The extent of the loot from the meat market was not known, but it is thought little was taken, as both cash register and safe had been cleared by the owner after Saturday's business.

John Bruney, of Meanook, Alta., had his car rifled of shoes, breeches, sweater and one bottle of liquor that was stored in the car, while John Ward, 12756 127 street, late Sunday, as it was parked at the rear of his home. The theft of the car to be stripped of parts was discovered by Robert "Bob" Crossland, 11142 97 avenue.

Two headlight glasses, four bulbs and a gas tank top were taken from Crossland's car as it was parked in front of his residence.

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

The British election on Nov. 14 is being fought on the issue of whether or not Great Britain should spend large sums of money in rearmament.

The B.I.R. asked several citizens on the streets to-day about British re-armament. Here are the answers.

RANDLE LITTLE, tailor: "Why bother asking me about this question. However if you want a snap opinion I would say that in a world that seems to have a mad desire for war the safety of the British Empire necessitates rearmament on the part of Great Britain."

NICK HALLOCK, waiter: "I do not see any reason why Great Britain should re-arm. If the others are going to re-arm and many of them have already re-armed then Great Britain, in the interests of national safety and to maintain the British Empire as it is today, should also re-arm. In fact she should be three times as strong as any other nation so that she will be ready in case she is dragged into another war."

* * *

BERT ARMITAGE, delivery truck driver: "The first law of nature is self preservation. Great Britain must re-arm when war threatens as it does today. Other countries have re-armed in the last twenty years. Great Britain in accordance with the ideas of the League of Nations and in the hope of preserving world peace by leading the way to disarmament has not re-armed. Today she must if the British Empire and the British people are to remain an important factor in world affairs."

THE MAN IN THE BARBER CHAIR: "Sure I think Great Britain ought to re-arm and let the other countries know that they are ready for war if the worst comes to the worst. She has got to protect herself, hasn't she? With conditions the way they are today the can't afford to take a chance. The World peace is a long way off yet, and in the meantime you have got to look out for your own interests."

TONY "The Barber": "I am all for re-arming. With things as uncertain as they are today a strong army and navy with a first class air force are the only things that count for very much. If the rest of the nations insist on building up large armaments then Great Britain has reason to be alarmed and for her own preservation must re-arm."

ELMO ESSERY DIES SUNDAY

Up until Friday he appeared to be making an excellent recovery. A blood clot is thought to have been released which brought on a heart attack which resulted in death.

Mr. Essery has been here for between 30 and 35 years.

Some 20 years ago he opened up business on the South Side and 17 years ago switched to the north side, where he has been since located.

Mr. Essery married Miss Sophia Sutherland, also of this city who survives. There are no children.

Howard and McBride are in charge of funeral arrangements.

Thursday afternoon at three p.m. W. W. Hudson, chairman will hold a meeting in the Edmonton Memorial Hall.

A meeting of the Edmonton Amateur Boxing Association will be held in the Memorial Hall Monday evening at 8 p.m.

Decree absolute in the divorce action brought by Doris Alderson against Arthur R. Alderson was granted by Mr. Justice Ford in supreme court Monday.

The regular weekly public sessions of the Edmonton branch of the National Association of Social Credit study groups will be held every Monday instead of Tuesday, as originally announced, at 8 p.m. in the Public Library lecture room. Tonight "The Deficiency of Purchasing Power," will be discussed.

VALIDITY OF FUEL OIL TAX TO BE TESTED

Ask Injunction Restraining Audit of Oil Company's Books

First proceedings in this province to declare the Fuel Oil Tax Act unconstitutional, on the grounds that the method of collection of the tax commonly known as the "gasoline tax levies" it an indirect tax and as such beyond the power of the province to levy, were announced by Harper H. Parlett, K.C., in supreme court Monday.

ASK INJUNCTION

Mr. Grant asked Mr. Justice Ford for an injunction restraining the certain government auditors, Fred J. Cottle and H. J. Appleton, from proceeding with the audit under the Fuel Oil Tax Act of the books of the Beaver Oil Co., Ltd. pending trial of an action in which the company is suing the auditors for permanent restraint on the ground of the unconstitutionality of the act.

At the hearing of the application J. W. McClung, agent for the government auditors, agreed to withhold the audit pending trial of the other action which will take place Wednesday before Mr. Justice Tweedie. Mr. Grant's suit is connected with a dispute the government is making against the Beaver Oil Company, which is to be heard by Mr. Justice Tweedie.

ANNUAL REVENUE

Revenue from the gasoline tax gives the government some $1,200,000 annually and in one year $2,000,000 was collected.

To keep within its powers in imposing a direct tax, the government should collect the levy directly from the consumers. Mr. Grant claims, according to Parlett, done through fuel oil retailers being collectors for the government.

The present method, however, is for the retail dealer to pay the tax at the refinery and reimburse himself through his charges to consumers or customers.

Bible Institute Finances Trips Says Aberhart

Week-end trips of his to Calgary are financed by the Prophetic Bible Institute and not by the government, according to Premier William Aberhart.

"If the institution which I serve there cannot pay for these trips, then it would be a very small matter on their part," he said. "But they do finance them and nothing comes out of the province on that account."

ROAD REPORT

The Alberta Motor Association report for Monday indicates good roads throughout the province except in the Peace River district, the St. Paul district and around Mundare and Vegreville.

A detailed report is as follows: Peace River district — Snow from Athabasca to High Prairie also rough at Athabasca, Smith, Slave Lake, Faust, High Prairie, Peace River and Fairview. Roads good at Spirit River and Grande Prairie. Rough roads from Dawson Creek to Fort St. John. No snow at Slave Lake. Jasper highway—Roads in good condition. St. Paul road—Roads rough. North Battleford, Wainwright, Chauvin, Hughenden, Provost and Veteran—Roads in good condition. Mulhurst and Cherhill—Roads in rough condition.

FIVE INCHES SNOW COVERS CITY MONDAY

Entire Province Held in Grip of First Spell of Winter

Boreas boomed in from the north over the week-end to wrap the province in winter and another fine city under a five-inch quilt of snow.

From early Sunday morning, when citizens awoke to see the first signal of Santa Claus, the snow continued to fall steadily to the accompaniment of a slowly lowering thermometer.

DRIVING DANGEROUS

Sunday's snow was soft and packed hard under the wheels of vehicular traffic, making driving dangerous, so that city detention halls in second gear. Only one accident occurred, however, when two cars collided, the high speed of one making it impossible to stop on the glassy road surface.

From a high point of 33 degrees, Sunday, temperature toppled gently until at 8 and 9 am. Monday it stood at 11 above zero, with the snow falling crisp and firm underfoot. Street car service, while somewhat off schedule, due to clogged tracks, was fairly well maintained.

But though Edmonton received heavy snowfall, it rated among the balmy sections compared to northern points whose temperature sank into the nether regions, with Keg River reporting 12 below zero, and Hudson Hope and Fort St. John 10 below.

SNOW IN SOUTH

Report from Calgary stated that a cold north wind brought a heavy snowfall to southern Alberta over the week-end but most harvesting there has been completed and the snow will be welcomed by southern farmers.

Edmonton district farmers are behind in their threshing in many districts and a number will be caught by the early winter but others have already completed the work.

SOCRED CLUB MERCY CALL IS ANSWERED

Edmonton's new Social Credit Club is making a name for itself in hospital circles.

On Sunday at 12:15 Mrs. Joseph Moore came to the club headquarters requesting that men available to give a blood transfusion to her husband be located. The husband was in the Royal Alexandra hospital under the care of Dr. J. O. Baker.

Taking immediate action the club got in touch with its local radio stations. C.J.C.A. had a grain program on the air at the time but offered to make an announcement when the program was through. C.F.R.N. was able to put the call on instantly as an urgent case, and inside twenty minutes after the request had been put on the air 25 men responded and three transfusions were given. As a result Mr. Moore is progressing favorably and Mrs. Moore and the Edmonton Social Credit Club are herewith transmitting their thanks to the volunteers for the blood transfusion and to the radio stations for their co-operation.

ADDITION TO MENTAL HOME

Plans are under consideration by the provincial government for the construction early in the spring of a $100,000 unit for the Oliver mental institution, according to Hon. W. A. Fallow, minister of public works. This new unit will provide accommodation for 100 disturbed cases.

In the meantime, he said, work is proceeding rapidly on the $25,000 dormitory wing which will house 50 female patients. This addition is three storeys in height and is being built by day labor under departmental supervision, although contracts were let for plumbing and electrical installations.

Between 25 and 30 men are being employed.

The minister said that future expansion of the mental homes would be at Oliver. He denied that any change in policy had been brought about by the department putting carpenters and other artisans on a five day week. So far, he said, he has instituted no new policy in this respect.

Mayor Clarke Only Mayoral Candidate Definitely In Ring

Canadian Labor Party Not To Contest Seat — Personnel of Tax Reform League Slate Not Decided.

With nomination day for the civic elections only a week away, the political pot has started to simmer but is far from the boiling point. Mayor Joseph A. Clarke, backed by the Civic Youth Association, is the only mayoralty candidate definitely in the field.

The Social Credit party, following a meeting of its advisory board Saturday night, announced Monday the organization was placing five contestants in the field, three for aldermanic and two for school board. The party is not contesting the mayoralty chair.

SLATE NOT DECIDED

The Tax Reform League, an organization formed with the combined forces of the Civic Government Association and the Edmonton Property Association, held meetings Monday morning and afternoon for the purpose of selecting a slate but its personnel has not been definitely decided at press-time Monday, according to E. McCormick, secretary of the league.

Announcement was made by the League, however, that it would likely place four aldermanic candidates in the election battle. The full slate is expected to be released late Monday or Tuesday.

J. M. Douglas, ex-mayor and president of the Edmonton Exhibition Association, has been approached by friends interested in supporting his candidature for the mayoralty, but Mr. Douglas stated Monday he would not allow his name to be placed on the list of nominations for this post.

It was also learned on reliable information that J. C. Bowen, former Edmonton alderman and M. L. A. had been asked by a group interested in civic politics to allow his name to stand for the mayoralty.

CLEVELY FOR ALDERMAN

The Civic Youth Association, which is supporting Mayor Clarke in his attempt to again win the chair he has held for the past year, has also announced W. W. Cleverly as a candidate for aldermanic honors. Mr. Clevely contested the 1934 election as an aldermanic candidate under Independent Labor party colors but was defeated.

The Canadian Labor Party has indicated that it will not run a mayoralty candidate this year. The Party's slate for aldermanic and school board positions will likely be announced later in the week with Aldermen H. D. Ainlay and J. W. Findlay, retiring councillors as possible candidates for re-election. It is not known whether the party will again support Aid. Margaret Crang, who was elected by Labor forces two years ago.

It is expected there will be a sprinkling of independent candidates when nominations are made next Monday.

NOMINATIONS NOV. 4

City Clerk Alfred Russell, returning officer, announced that nominations must be filed with him between the hours of 11 a.m. and 12 o'clock noon, November 4. Candidates must possess the necessary qualifications as provided in the city charter and must present a statement to this effect signed by City Assessor Thomas Walker.

The city charter provides that contestants for mayoralty, alderman and school board positions must possess freehold property in the city to the value of at least $5000, over and above charges, liens and encumbrances and must also have their names on the last revised assessment roll.

As an alternative qualification, the charter provides that citizens may run for office providing he or she pays taxes on a business assessed at $800 or over.

Natural Cause Death At Old Immigration Hall

Ramon Gallant, of no definite residence, was found dead in the old immigration hall early Sunday morning.

Death, according to police, was natural and that Gallant passed away peacefully was made certain by Dr. A. E. Braithwaite who was called in by police to investigate the death.

The body was sent to Howard and McBride.

MAN INJURED AS CAR TAKES 50-FOOT DROP

Arthur Murray Escapes Death in Plunge Off Scenic Drive

Arthur Murray, employed as a watchman along a dangerous stretch of road to the scenic drive in the Highlands, narrowly escaped death when the car he was driving somersaulted down a 50-foot embankment early Saturday evening.

Murray was rushed to hospital in McNeill's ambulance by police officers called upon the scene and it was found he suffered from severe bruises to the body and bad cuts about the face. At the Royal Alexandra hospital Murray was attended by Dr. A. B. Cleveland and 40 stitches were necessary in order to close the deep wounds inflicted. A badly lacerated tongue prevented him from giving police a statement on the accident.

The accident was first noticed by H. Block, of 10359 93rd street, who summoned police aid by telephone.

ON CLOSED ROAD

The road along which Murray was driving is now closed to motorists and Constable Alex Keating, and it is thought that Murray was leaving his small watchman's cabin situated near the driveway. Driving west from his cabin, the accident occurred when Murray lost control of his car failing over the 50 foot embankment.

TURNED TURTLE

Eye witnesses state that the car turned over several times before it came to rest and it was at the bottom of the sharp grade that police officers found he car.

Damage to the automobile was severe and it was some time before police could release Murray from the pile of wreckage which the 50 foot fall made of the vehicle.

BISSET URGES AMENDMENT TO INTEREST ACT

Advocating cheaper borrowings for Canadian municipalities in line with the resolution passed at the Montreal mayoralty conference, Ald. A. Bisset has suggested to the government a proposed change in amendment be made to the federal Interest Act of 1880 by the King government in the years since that enactment rates. Ald. Bisset's proposal is contained in a news dispatch from the eastern city, and he thinks the Association of Canadian Mayors would like to drive for the amendment.

Power to call loans at five-year periods would be the chief amendment to the Act, he believes.

Under the Bisset proposition, outlined in a letter, a Canadian municipality having now, or in the future, bonds on the market maturing more than five years hence, would at the end of the five-year term have power to call those loans for payment, or if principal and interest to date, plus three months' interest to the end of that period. Edmonton alderman believes these instances of an amended Interest Act would enable civic and Canadian municipal bonds to accept interest more in accordance with lower levels ruling in current markets.

Relief Branch Over-Expended Now By $6,500

Appropriation of $84,000 for civic relief expenditures for this year will likely prove inadequate to the tune of $10,060, the over-expenditure of this department for the first nine months of 1935 has been recorded to City Comptroller John Hodgson, who is submitting his month-end report on civic revenues and expenditures to city council, Monday night.

Total civic expenditures for the period under survey were $3,566,-848.00, estimated expenditures for the nine months being $3,557,388. Revenue totalled $3,497,642.52 as against the estimated figure of $3,-557,388 for the period.

Many Travel On Excursion Rates

Many Edmonton citizens have completed arrangements to take advantage of the Canadian Pacific railway special week-end trip to Calgary this week. The special rate is good for any train leaving Edmonton Thursday night at 11.59 p.m., all day Friday and all day Saturday. Passengers must return to the latter city by 6.05 p.m. train Monday from Calgary.

An exhibition game of the New York Rangers is being held in the new artificial ice rink at Calgary during the week end. Several Edmonton sport fans have indicated their intention of attending the game.

Edmonton Firemen Busy In Department Toy Shops

Edmonton's five firehalls this week are humming with in-between-fires activity. The Chief Albert Dutton conceived Toy Shop is going full blast, to insure that every underprivileged child in Edmonton will find a gift from Santa in the stocking hung by the chimney Christmas morning.

The toy shops need material to work with. Merchants and businessmen, as in the past five years, are supplying small quantities of lumber and paint. But it's up to the average citizen to donate old toys which the firemen repair and repaint, turning them into new bright and shining playthings to gladden the hearts of poor kiddies at Yuletide.

A phone call to 24188 will bring a fire department truck to your door to pick up your old toys. Call 24188 today and do your part in making the Firemen's Toy Shop as big a success this year as it was last season, when the Smoke-Eaters won a 500 toy prize in a Dominion-wide contest for having the biggest and best toy factory in any of Canada's firehalls.

Victoria M.L.A. Here To Study Social Credit Plan

Interested in matters pertaining to government, Prescott Anscomb, M.L.A. for Victoria, and one-time mayor of the British Columbia capital, came to Edmonton Monday to try and dope out the whys and wherefores of the new order in Alberta.

It is apparent that Mr. Anscomb, a chartered accountant, has pronounced views on Social Credit but beyond saying that if it works the entire Dominion will switch over to the Social Credit party, he had no comment to make.

The semi-prayer meeting style of political campaigning is spreading, Mr. Anscomb observed, one politician in Vancouver opening his rallies with "Onward Christian Soldiers."

PAT'S PANS by —BILL LEWIS—

UNOFFICIAL championship of Edmonton in senior Canadian football for 1935 goes to Catsy Mills' Hi-Grads as a result of their 10-7 victory over University of Alberta on Saturday . . . It was the second win for the Mills' squad in as many starts against Varsity this fall, the first game some weeks ago having resulted in a 10-2 win for them . . . Saturday's game produced a struggle that was close all the way and deadly decision could easily have gone either way and still be fair to both teams . . . Hi-Grads were without two or three of their stars who were injured in Calgary Thanksgiving Day but Varsity, likewise, was without some of the starriest U. of A. performers.

It has been an unfortunate season all round for Varsity's new coach, Jake Jamieson, this fall . . . There was a dearth of really experienced material around the halls of learning, and then injuries to players hampered him more . . . however, he should have the nucleus of a better team by next year.

YESTERDAY'S snow and cold weather started the hockey talk heresabouts going stronger than ever . . . In fact, it has all the sport bugs chattering about puck prospects in the city this winter . . . Last night a despatch came in from Winnipeg stating that both the Eskimos and Seattle had put in bids for surplus talent at the camp of the world-champion Montreal Maroons and there may be something doing on that quarter shortly . . . In the meantime, I might tell you there is a persistent rumor about the city that Owner Henry Roche is seeking Art Somers, formerly of New York Rangers, to act as playing manager of the Esks . . . It has been announced that Somers signed with Prince Albert to coach their amateurs but the rumor about him coming here still persists.

Should Roche be able to sign up Somers, he would have a really good man . . . He was a sensational centre-ice performer with the old Winnipeg pros; went to Vancouver to star with the Lions and lead the coast league in scoring; and then was sold to Rangers.

THE Eskimo boss could not be reached for confirmation of any of these rumors last night and it is thought he may be in Winnipeg to dicker with Tommy Gorman, of the Maroons, for the talent mentioned in Sunday's little patch . . . He will probably have an early announcement to make regarding the club.

Either of the local hockey talk chiefly concerns the inter-city senior amateur league which was recently organized . . . At present there isn't much that is definite about how the two local squads will line up, but work is going ahead steadily on the proposition and you can be sure of seeing some fine amateur games this winter when the schedule gets underway . . . There is a lot of classy junior material graduating into senior ranks this year, these players added to the available supply of former senior stars, will provide all that is necessary to build up two good, strong clubs.

BOSTON HOLDS TWO WORKOUTS

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Oct. 28.—Boston Bruins contented themselves with a single light workout Sunday on the seventh day of the National Hockey league club's training here.

Saturday they went through a stiff scrimmage following coach Frank Patrick's expression of dissatisfaction with their condition after they were defeated 3-2 Friday night in a game with farm club players, Boston Cubs.

The names of any amateurs who graduate into professional ranks will not be announced until after Wednesday, Manager Art Ross said last night. Roy Conacher, Toronto, and Dirk Kilrea, Prince Albert, Sask. have been prominent in workouts of the 3 amateurs invited to the training camp.

Nighbor Has One Major Problem

FORT ERIE, Ont., Oct. 28.—Frank Nighbor, manager of Buffalo Bisons of the International hockey league, will have only one major problem to solve when his team starts training here today. That concerns his defence.

Gamey Lederman and Tiny Teasdale are the only defence hold-overs. Ken Lederman, brother of the veteran Gamey, will try-out with the Bisons.

DISCOVERY IS DEFEATED IN BIG HANDICAP

Firethorn Wins Maryland $10,000 Added Event at Laurel Track

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 28.—Walter M. Jeffords' Firethorn won the $10,000 added Maryland handicap here Saturday with Count Arthur second and Only One third. Discovery, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's sensation, did not finish in the money.

Firethorn, Jeffords' entry with Judy O'Grady, paid $14 for $2 by winning the mile and a quarter feature by three-quarters of a length. Discovery was burdened by 138 pounds while Firethorn carried 119 with Jockey H. Richards up, in making the distance in 2:02 3-5.

Firethorn moved up on the outside rounding the last turn, were the leaders down at the furlong pole and never was menaced after that. Discovery trailed for the first five furlongs, closed some during the remainder of the distance but never threatened the leaders.

Discovery was the odds-on favorite, the betting being 65 cents to a dollar. Firethorn was a six to one shot.

Firethorn had things all his way at the finish, with three lengths between him and Count Arthur, who bested Only One by a nose. Only One was two lengths ahead of Discovery, which ran fourth by two lengths.

The secondary feature, the $3,500 Mile Spalding Lowe Jenkins handicap, went to Memory Book, owned by Greentree Stables, with Maeriel second and Ned Reigh third.

Engineers Victors In Faculty Soccer

Bucking their way through the heavier Arts team, Engineers won a hard-fought 10-8 victory in an interfaculty preliminary to the Hi-Grads-Varsity game Saturday afternoon.

Led by their speedy half, Rusty Oliver, the Engineers had the edge on the play throughout the game and deserved a larger score than they received.

Their victory places the Engineers in the lead in the inter-faculty schedule and in line to win the championship they held two years ago.

Alex Denevyon, for the Arts, was the standout of the game. A member of last year's victorious Golden Bears, he was injured in a workout early this year. Saturday was his first appearance for over a month. Oliver assisted by Bob Cook, speedy Science wing, was the chief bulwark of the Engineer squad.

Score Win Over Blues in Training Contest at Midland

MIDLAND, Ont., Oct. 28.—Despite Charlie Conacher's four goals, Dick Irvin and his "Whites" are leading in the pre-season series for the Ace Bailey trophy between the two squads of hockey players in the camp of Toronto Maple Leafs. The "Whites" defeated the "Blues" 6-4 here Saturday night. The first game was a tie.

Led by Buzz Boll with three goals, the "Whites," backed by the invincible goal-tending of Phil Stein, had little trouble holding the Blues in check.

SHOWS OLD POWER

Conacher scored two of his goals on passes from Harvey Jackson, one on a pass from Joe Primeau and one on a solo effort. The National league's greatest goal-getter was firing his terrific shot with all his old-time power.

Knucker Irvine, late of Moncton Hawks, scored the only goal of the first period for the "Whites." Conacher got three in the second stanza but Irvin's team kept ahead through goals by Day, Boll and Bill Thoms, Boll scored two, one on a pass from Frank Finnigan. Day's came from close-range on a rebound of Ken. Doraty's shot.

BOLL SCORES ALONE

Conacher kept the "Blues," coached by Eddie Powers, in the running with his fourth goal early in the third period, but Boll scored angle-handed with five minutes to go.

While the Thoms-Boll-Finnigan line accounted for the majority of the winning side's goals, the line composed of Purpur, Irvine and Red Metz pleased the crowd with its brilliant two-way display.

LINEUP

Blues—Goal, Stein; defence, Howard, Day; centre, Thoms; wings, Boll, Finnigan; subs, Blair, Purpur, Irvine, Doraty, Kelly, Art Jackson, Metz.

Whites—Goal, Hainsworth; defence, Horner, Clancy; centre, Primeau; wings, Conacher, H. Jackson; subs, Hamilton, Davidson, Gill, Markle, Parsons, Shill, Fitzgerth, Sharpe.

Referee—Johnny Mitchell, Hamilton.

Locals Need Only Victory Tonight To Retain Trophy

Triumph Over St. Louis Quintet in Saturday's Fixture by 51-24 Margin—Visitors Cannot Hold Champs

By BILL LEWIS

Coach Percy Page's Commercial Grads took another strangle-hold on their International Women's Basketball championship and the Underwood Trophy at the Arena Saturday night when they romped to their second successive victory over the St. Louis American Legion squad. The final score was 51 to 24.

Grads have not absolutely clinched the series as it is being decided on a best three-of-five-game basis, but to all intents and purposes it's theirs right now. The third game, which many be the last the champs play this fall, is scheduled at the Arena tonight, with action starting at 8:30 o'clock sharp.

Noel MacDonald—all were in brilliant shooting form.

SCORES IS POINTS

Babe gave out of her starriest performances as she raced through the ranks of the Americans for seven field baskets and one free throw to wind up with 15 points to her credit. She repeatedly drew rounds of applause from the fans for her work.

Noel MacDonald was right behind the little forward star in the matter of scoring, dropping in five field goals and three free shots for 13 points, while Margaret MacBurney turned in another fine game like that of Thursday to collect 11 points for the team. Gladys Fry played a starry game throughout and was responsible for eight of the Grads' points.

Bernice Fellman and little Mary Dueker stole the whole show as far as the visitors were concerned. The former, playing splendid basketball, counted six field baskets and a pair of penalty shots for a total of 14 points, while Miss Dueker marked up eight points.

GRADS MASTERS THROUGHOUT GAME

Saturday's contest saw the locals masters of the situation for the entire route, and, for this reason, it was not particularly exciting for the small crowd of about 1,200 fans in the pows. True, the visitors managed to out-score them in one quarter—the last—but this came as a result of sheer desperation, and only after Grads had piled up an insurmountable lead.

At no stage of the encounter did the Americans look anything like threatening to the Page quintet. They trailed almost from the beginning and could never get anywhere near close on the scoreboard.

Part of the reason for the Grads' wide margin over the visitors, however, was because of the wonderful way each of the players were clicking. The team couldn't do a single thing wrong, and, with their shooting being of the most deadly brand, it was a hopeless task St. Louis faced in trying to stop them.

LEADING ALL WAY

The locals jumped out ahead 10-4 in the opening quarter of the game, then went on a real scoring spree in the second round to amass 19 more points with every one of the five regulars contributing her share to the score-sheet. St. Louis got but seven points in this session, which made the count read 29-11 at half-time.

Grads were going as strong as ever when play resumed after the rest interval and they collected 16 points in the third period while holding St. Louis to four. With the locals far out of reach by this time, the invaders never quit and, in the fourth stanza, threw everything they had into the battle to outscore them 9-6 and make the final count 51-24.

The three regular front-line attachments of the champions—Babe Belanger, Margaret MacBurney and

Eskimos, Seattle Bid For Maroons' Surplus

WINNIPEG, Oct. 28.—Seattle and Edmonton teams in the Northwestern professional hockey league have put in a bid for any players available when the training camp period of the Montreal Maroons of the National hockey league ends here. So far no names have been mentioned.

Maroons enter a two-game exhibition series this week with Philadelphia Ramblers. New York Rangers farm team. The first game is scheduled for Wednesday night and another for Saturday. They tackle Rangers next week after the Metropolitan stars return from their Calgary tour.

It is thought that Henry J. Roche, owner of the local Eskimos, is in Winnipeg seeking players to add to his club and that he intended making overtures to the Maroons for the necessary talent.

Makes Bids for Players to Bolster Ramblers of Can.-Am. Loop

WINNIPEG, Oct. 28—Bids for players to strengthen Philadelphia Ramblers, New York Rangers farm team in the Canadian-American League, were dispatched over the week-end, said Lester Patrick, Rambler's supervisor. Patrick announced Phil Watson, Montreal amateur, had signed a contract with Ramblers.

Patrick offered Tommy Gorman, Montreal Maroons manager, $10,000 for Sammy McManus who is wanted on Ramblers' squad to fill in left wing on their second line. Gorman also received requests for McManus from Windsor Bulldogs of the International League and George Boucher, manager of Springfield Indians in the Canadian-American loop.

DOUBTFUL OF WARES

Eddie Wares, Calgary amateur rookie at Montreal Maroons' training camp here, may perform for Ramblers next winter. If he joins Ramblers, Wares will become utility player.

Three Ranger players were moved into Ramblers' camp Sunday. Danny Cox, who becomes Ramblers' captain and Coach Herb Gardiner's right hand man, went along with players Larry Molyneaux and Bob Kirk.

Kirk, who came to Rangers from Vancouver Lions of the Northwestern professional circuit, was transferred for some seasoning.

SEEK ONE PLAYER

Ramblers players number 12 with an opening for another forward. Their line-up will include Mac Colville, Alex Shibicky and Neil Colville, the first line players who became prominent when New York Crescents won the Eastern United States amateur championship last winter. Cox, Watson and Kirk will form another line and Ramblers hope they also will have McManus and Wares and an unnamed player. Babe Pratt, Joe Cooper and Molyneaux will alternate on defence duties with Bert Gardiner in goal.

SEDATE GAIT NOW REACHED ON GRIDIRONS

Only Two Upsets Seen in American Football on Saturday

By HERBERT W. BARKER

NEW YORK, Oct. 28—A dizzy whirligig from the first month, the United States football campaign has struck a more sedate gait, but not in time to save Purdue's boilermakers and Harry Stuhldreher's Villanova Wildcats from suffering their first defeats in surprising upsets Saturday.

While such favorites as Minnesota, Ohio State, Notre Dame, Princeton, North Carolina, Rice and California were marching on, Purdue, regarded as a top-flight contender for the Big Ten crown, was thrown for a loss by Carnegie Tech's fighting Tartans, 7-0. Villanova wound up on the short end of a 19-15 score as Gus Dorais' Detroit Titans pushed over a fourth-period touchdown.

Otherwise there were few surprises unless Stanford's 6-0 conquest of Washington on two first-period field goals by Monk Moscrip could be classed in that category.

Army, one of the East's unbeaten arrays, outplayed Yale's game Bulldogs before 45,000 at New Haven to earn a 14-8 decision. Navy, appearing before the day's biggest crowd —65,000—found itself overmatched by Notre Dame's Ramblers, 14-0.

HI-GRADS HUMBLE VARSITY IN FOOTBALL BATTLE

Students Beaten By Score of 10-7 In Close Contest

Fourth-Quarter Rally Brings Triumph to Coach Mills' City Squad—Play is Even Throughout Game

By JOFFRE DECHENE

Unleashing a vigorous attack in the final quarter of the game to rip through the luckless Varsity Golden Bears for a winning touchdown, Edmonton Hi-Grads obtained a 10-7 verdict over their student opponents in a football encounter Saturday at the Varsity grid.

The Varsity gridders certainly put up a great fight, and the Hi-Grads undoubtedly came out of the struggle with the impression of having played a mighty different team than the one they opposed at the start of the season. Their line, in particular, was much improved, doing some good blocking and affording their runners valuable protection.

BOTH TEAMS HAVE PLAYERS MISSING

They had the town lads worried plenty throughout, and at some stages of the game they looked the better team. Although the services of Guy Merton and Pete Rule were missed considerably, the boys relegating them did very well. Dick Loewwitke, in particular, starred for the Varsity aggregation, adding some good kicking and some really outstanding work carrying the ball.

Hi-Grads, in turn, were crippled by the absence of Graham, Heath and Rennie who were out of the game, nursing bruising memories of their encounter with the Calgary Drinks Thanksgiving Day. At the start, their play was a bit disorganized, but they came back in great style in the fourth quarter to fold enough power to explode the Varsity hopes just when they were highest.

OPEN AERIAL ATTACK

Golden Bears opened the game with an aerial attack which Pike of the Hi-Grads quickly stemmed by intercepting Woyewitka's forward with a nice jump, rom then on to the end of the first quarter the play was a bit slow, although punctuated here and there by a brilliant spot. Both teams were not even footing, with Varsity enjoying a edge on yards gained. The end of the stanis came out of that frame with a 1-0 advantage, which they earned when Gerlitz was rouged by Bob Zender.

In the second quarter, Hi-Grads warmed up to the contest and the play gradually became more lively and tense. Led by Stevens and Gerlitz, the boys from over town steadily advanced towards the Varsity goal-line. Bill Scott, of Varsity, paved the way for the first Hi-Grad touch, when he fumbled a kick from Stevens on his own five yard line. On the next play, a pass on Hi-Grad third down, Stevens had broken through for the first touch of the game on a plunge.

VARSITY OFFENSIVE

Entering the second half with a four-point deficit, the Golden Bears came back all geared up for quite a brilliant rally. Led on by Woyewitka, the students tore gaping holes in the Hi-Grad line until their sustained offensive brought concrete results.

It back 35 yards on a brilliant run, took possession of the ball to carry From his kick-off. Woyewitka which was immediately followed by a 20-yard gain by Bill Scott, who accidentally played a good game for the Bears all the way. Then Stevens intercepted a forward pass to momentarily check the Varsity advance. Nevertheless, on the next play Hi-Grads were penalized for an offside.

On Varsity first down, Woyewitka tossed a forward to Zender, who brought the ball on the Hi-Grad five yard line and, on the second down, Woyewitka again took possession to rip through for a touchdown. A successful convert added one point, and then, though on the play was scoreless, but the Varsity boys enjoyed an edge in blocking, with their line affording ball carriers good interference, a decisive improvement over previous games.

PUT ON PRESSURE

The fourth quarter saw a reversal of roles and in this frame it was the Hi-Grads' turn to stage a comeback and wipe out a deficit and they did just that. It was evident from the kick-off that the town boys were clicking, with every member of the team doing his work in an effective manner. Gerlitz started the ball a-rollin' with a nice end run, and, with Stevens and Wynn putting on the high pressure, the town boys kept on gaining.

Wynn staged one of the high lights of the game when he broke through Varsity's center, weaving in and out of the scattered arms of his opponents, to gain 35 yards. But Bob Devaney came the honor of registering the winning touchdown for coach "Catsy" Mills' gridders, when he deftly got under Silver's onside kick. Though the Bears tried hard in the remainder of the frame to stage a rally, steadier their efforts were fruitless.

The game, although a bit lagging in the opening frame, developed quite a tense fray as the boys got warmed up and organized. It was undoubtedly a tough battle to lose, but the Golden Bears as they played a fine game. But the last-quarter rally of the Hi-Grads coupled with the brilliant running of Gerlitz, Stevens and Wynn was too much for them.

RANGERS HEAD WEST TO PLAY CALGARY TILTS

WINNIPEG, Oct. 28.—Lester Patrick and his 35 New York Rangers entrained last night for Calgary, where they will engage in a three-game hockey exhibition series.

Bill Cook, who had an increase in his family Saturday, left Winnipeg on a day early to visit his wife at Regina General hospital. He appeared at Rangers' camp here Saturday for a brisk workout and hurried westward shortly afterwards. He will join the main squad when they pass through Saskatchewan's capital Monday morning.

Glen Brydson, a forward recently obtained from St. Louis Eagles, worked on the Rangers' first line with Bun Cook and Frankie Boucher Saturday, but before the scrimmage was over he was removed because of an injury. Skating at full speed, he attempted to pass Vernon Ayres. He was thrown off balance and crashed to the ice and injured his shoulder.

Public School Soccer Results

Results for the week ending Oct. 25
SENIOR SECTION

Battling for the semi-final bracket Donald Rose upset the dope by defeating McCauley 2 to 1 in a very hard fought struggle played on Queen's Ave. grounds. In the first half Gratland put Donald Rose in the lead only to have McCauley even up on a hard shot by Gilmour. Starting even in the second half play worked towards the McCauley goal, where Tom Moore battered one in for Donald Rose. Although McCauley had little edge in field play, they were unable to be effective, due mainly to Medwid on Donald Ross, whose kicking from the full back position was a feature of the game. By virtue of their win the Donald Ross team will play the highly-touted Bennett team in a home and home series for one of the positions in the final.

McDougal and Calder will play a sudden death game on Monday next to determine who shall meet Eastwood for the other final bracket.

As the race narrows down, keen interest is taken in results of these games. Eastwood on its impressive showing appears assured of a place in the final, as does Bennett, the champions of the South Side. But you never can tell, as Calder always is a force to reckon with, and Donald Ross has some smart kickers.

The finals will likely be played at Diamond Park, and notice will be given when definite results are obtainable regarding dates and participants.

JUNIOR SECTION

After playing a 1-1 tie with Cromdale, the Eastwood Juniors finally put them to the cleaners by a score of 3-0, thus gaining a semi-final bracket. These Eastwood Juniors appear to be following the example of their seniors. Barcitin, Kiesko, and Smith were responsible for the three goals.

Playing on King Edward grounds, Ritchie defeated Queen Alex. last year's title holders by a score of 1-0. Forwick for Ritchie scored during a scrimmage resulting from a well placed corner kick, five minutes before the final whistle. By this win Ritchie enters the semi-finals.

In the D section Calder Juniors took the measure of Westmount 3-0. In a previous tie game of 1-1 Westmount held them even, but in the second game Calder turned in the heat. Osypchuk, Hoffman and Wells were the marksmen for Calder.

Snow at the start of the week held things up, but at present the leading teams are hot-footing it down the home stretch.

Regina-Pegs' Clash Holding Spotlight

Game Next Saturday Will Have Big Bearing on Championship

By RAY COLLETT

When Regina Roughriders clash with Winnipeg's hand-picked football squad on Nov. 2 in the Manitoba capital, the championship of western Canada may be in the balance. Calgary Bronks may have a chance against the winner, but it is not considered likely. The winner, backed up against the east for Dominion honors, will carry into the Canadian final, a revived hope of consigning the Grey cup which so far has proved so elusive for western teams.

If coughdrops and Pegs should provide a rousing classic before the sectional honors are won. Both are rated stronger than last year, with Regina headed again by the veteran Al Ritchie, and Winnipeg bolstered with the greatest collection of imported talent yet to show on the prairie. In the latter, Winnipeg is essentially favored to win the struggle, though no team under the Ritchie flag is beaten till the final whistle sounds. Pegs started out this year determined to win a Canadian championship and to gain were geared to assure that end. They have collected probably the outstanding team, judged individually, in Canada today, not excepting Toronto Arenauts despite their brilliant showing in the east.

RITCHIE COACHES RIDERS

What the west has to say of the factional squabble can be summed up briefly. Pegs still are favored, though not a generously as in the past, but Regina is given at least a fighting chance, because of their more advanced drilling in Canadian plays. The stellar Winnipeg imports, individually brilliant though they are, may find the cunning gained from Al Ritchie's long experience more than a slight handicap, for the veteran mentor, with years of grid warfare and many east-west series to aid him, knows all the answers under the Canadian code. Pegs on the other hand, are coached by two Americans, blond Bert Oja on the line, and Bob Fritz in the backfield.

Roughriders returned to the wars with most of last season's veterans intact. Ralph Pierce, whose play against Sarnia in May drew the attention of eastern scouts, is going as well as ever and is ably seconded by Paul Kirk, the ace scorer on last year's Rider squad. Pierce has been strenuously drilled by Ritchie to run back kicks and has an apparent edge on Winnipeg's best in this respect, while Ted Lydiard is rated a better snap or centre than Lou Adelman of the Manitobans.

HAS OLD GUARD

Along with these, Ritchie has an old guard of Johnny Caruik, Fritz Sandstrom, Nick Buoch and Tubby Renwick marshalled around his standard, with the veterans experience leavened the new blood in O'Connor, a North Dakotan; Walkery from the same state, and Steve Adkins, twisting, running star of last year. Also the "Old Pro" has been able to inspire new spirit and zeal into the Riders and a faith in their ability not only to win the western title but to beat whatever team represent the east.

GREAT WINNIPEG LINE

The Regenas are entrenched along the line by Winnipeg's powerful brigade, but the players they fear most of all are Orj, the former star of Minnesota dentist who coaches the forwards and Russ Rebholz, forward-passing ace of the backfield who after several terms in western football is turning in his all-star performance this season. Rebholz came from Wisconsin in 1932. Knute Rockne checked Oja as an all-American when he played centre for Minnesota. To add him there is Joe Pergelt, another Minnesotan up this year; Greg Kabat hard-tackling kicker; Joe Kirschner who recovered the loose ball to beat Sarnia in their exhibition game; Lou Mogul and Lou Adelman, both veterans who have turned in their best football of their careers to date, and the fingertip of Bert Marquardt. That looks like the most brilliant and powerful line the west has ever gathered.

Beside pass-tossing Russ Rebholz in the back-field, Fritz Hanson, a small but efficient passthrower and receiver also from Dakota, is rated eminently dangerous. Coach Bob Fritz from the same college who plays quarter is headed as reaching a new high in planning ability. This trio of ex-Americans really make the backfield, and Winnipeg confronts them a trio of winning aces. "Dynamite" Eddie James, great star of college days, is also playing at the top of his form despite his long list of injuries.

When the teams meet it looks like a clash between a finely drilled Rider brigade, featuring a notably versatile attack and defense under Canadian rules, and a powerful Winnipeg line, plus great potential backfield strength. Riders feel they can stop that backfield, yet Pegs must be given the call on all-round power and performance. If they win they carry into the Dominion finals the psychological advantage of a win over the present champions, Sarnia Imperials. But Riders figure they have something to say first and the west should see a real football classic when the rivalry is settled.

VANCOUVER, Oct. 28.—A smart Pacific Lutheran College eleven from Tacoma trampled the University of British Columbia football squad underfoot for a 41-0 victory in a United States football exhibition Saturday.

Rumor Howie Morenz Hold-Out With Hawks

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Oct. 29.—Manager Clem Loughlin of Chicago Black Hawks has but a few days more to render his decision as to what rookies he will keep on the Hawk squad. He sent his N.H.L. team through a gruelling drill here Sunday before 2500 spectators.

Howie Morenz, for the second successive day, was not in uniform. Despite rumors as to a salary dispute, both Loughlin and Major Frederick McLaughlin, owner of the Hawks, denied them.

The rookies who will be retained are Norm Locking and Eddie Ouellette, the latter high scorer for the London Feumerlys of the International circuit last season.

SPRINGFIELD TIES CANUCK SEXTET, 2-2

Fast Enlivens Hockey Game at Quebec on Sunday

QUEBEC, Oct. 28. — Near mid-season speed, a fist fight which brought major penalties, and a third period drive for two goals by the major leagues Sunday featured an exhibition hockey match here between Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League and Springfield Indians of the Canadian American League. They battled to a 2-2 tie, no overtime being played.

Last night Canadiens bundled a train for the maritime provinces to begin a series of exhibition games in Saint John, Moncton, Halifax and Charlottetown with their fellow N.H.L. clubs, the Boston Bruins, who are training at Saint John, where the first game will be played tonight.

SAUNDERS SCORES

Springfield scored twice in the first period, Ted Saunders meeting after a pretty combination play with the two Leo Bourgault and Murray. Tommy Filmore notched the second on Whitey Fields' pass in front of the net. At the other end little Abbie Cox, goalie last year for Quebec Beavers, was holding the habitants nowless.

Toward the end of the period while Canadiens were carrying play to the Springfield nets George Mantha and Marcel Raymond tangled. They floored each other lightly and before they were separated other players mixed in. When the air was cleared big Jean Pusee Canadien defenceman and George Mantha were sent off with major.

EACH TEAM COUNTS

After a second period in which goalies Wilf Cude and Cox were unbeatable, Canadiens took the upper hand in the third. Again and again they roared in four and four abreast. Armand Mondou wriggled past defenceman Doris Lepine to tape the first goal and Wilcio Larochelle tied the count on Pel. Lepine's assist.

LINEUPS

Canadiens: goal, Cude; defence, Lepine, Brunelli; centre, Lepine sons; wings, Larochelle, Sabourin; Mantha, Goldsworthy, McGill, Gagnon, Pusie, Price, Coutus.

Springfield: goal, Cox; defence, Bourgault, Spencer; centre, Fields; wings, Bourgault, Latimore; Filmore, Alexandre, Saunders, Murray.

Filmore, Wilson, Raymond, Hunter.

Toronto Varsity Adds to College Leadership with Victory

TORONTO, Oct. 28.—The Eastern rugby picture took on a clearer outline today following weekend victories which helped Toronto's Argonauts to more firmly entrench themselves in the Big Four leadership while University of Toronto stretched their lead in the college loop to three points. There were no senior games in the Ontario Union.

Playing hosts to Montreal at Varsity Stadium, here, Argos scored an 18-12 win over Hamilton Tigers, invading Ottawa, won by 10-3 from the Rough-riders, and still have a clear supremacial chance of winning the title.

REPEAT VICTORY

Toronto Varsity are sent to Montreal for a return engagement with the McGill Redmen when they defeated the latter last week. The Big Blue team swamped the lads of old McGill by 29-0. Meanwhile Queens moved into the race with its 18-10 win over Western at Kingston.

One more victory in three games and Argos have to play would make them certain to finish in at least a tie for first place.

Argos got ahead with a first-quarter touchdown after Captain Ted Morris intercepted one of Rhino's forward passes, and Tony Roosa went over for a try. The Toronto team kept in front for the rest of the game but Montreal backed a last-quarter rush to get a touchdown.

OTTAWA GAME DULL

The game at Ottawa was dull for three periods. Tigers scored a touchdown in the first period, Johnny Ferraro went over after Rogers down in the third after intercepting Ottawa forward pass. Hamilton came to life in the fourth and without losing the ball drove 75 yards for the touchdown. The Tigers captured nine out with Abe Elkowitz and Stan Reid, two outstanding on the sides, lines with injuries failed to get over.

A versatile Varsity attack that kept McGill off balance for most of the game and the best ball-handling backfield seen in Montreal this season, were the reward to Warren Stevens' blue-clad squad when it rolled two touchdowns, two field goals, and a single point to win 29-0. The homesters were held to one touchdown and a rouge.

No Hope for 135 Japanese Miners

TOKYO, Oct. 28. — Hope was finally abandoned Sunday for 135 miners entombed in the Futukoka Meiji coal mine at Kashi following a disastrous gas explosion Saturday.

The blast killed 17 men outright and injured 15 others. A total of 167 men were working in the mines at the time and the remaining 135 were feared dead.

GAME LEAGUE SEEKS AID OF GOVERNMENT

branch and the fish branch under one department of the government, the building of all weather roads to encourage tourist trade, the increase of bounties on cougars, coyotes and wolves and an annual crow shoot, etc.

EVENING BANQUET

"The government will give worthy consideration to your resolutions and will give you satisfaction as far as possible, stated the Hon. W. N. Chant, in reply to the toast to Alberta and her neighbors at the Association dinner held in the Corona hotel Saturday night. The banquet was given in honor of the delegates to the convention, over 175 attending.

"We have a great heritage, if we use it wisely, protect it and restock our lakes and build more good roads and highways, so that tourists can get to the lakes, we will bring in a revenue that will pay us many times over for our expenditure. The whole question revolves about the problem of finance. We must all co-operate.

"Regardless of political creed we all have the same problem and we will only solve it by co-operation. We must all put our shoulders to the wheel and push together," he continued.

"The fish and game league have a worthy ideal. They represent the ideal of thrift. The word thrift has been misrepresented. It has in the past been thought of as going without. Properly looked at a better interpretation is to make a wise and proper use of what is at your disposal. The Alberta fish and game league will make a wise and proper use of what we have in this province. On that basis the league and social credit meet on a common ground.

WILLING TO SERVE

"I believe you have passed a resolution asking the government to co-ordinate the fish and game branches under one department. If you wish to place it under my department I will appreciate it. I enjoy fishing more than anything else. I enjoy seeing the wild life," the minister concluded.

PICTORIAL MENU

A special feature of the banquet was the decorative program and attractive menu. The program, an eight page affair, had sketches of wild animals and birds on the front cover and a typical country scene on the back cover. Inside was a complete account of the convention agenda and the menu of the evening banquet. The menu was in good taste with consumme venison and cold lake trout supplied by the courtesy of R. T. Rodd and the provincial fisheries branch. Elk venison steak and moose steak was supplied by the courtesy of S. H. Clark and the provincial game branch.

The toast to "Delegates and the Leagues" was proposed by the Rev. George MacDonald and replied to by Harry Gould of High River who for over 40 years has been active in game and fish organizations. The toast to Alberta and her neighbors was proposed by N. Fraser. He pointed out the necessity of game conservation and expressed the desire of having the government devote a larger share of the revenue from game and fish sources, to conservation work.

PARTRIDGE APPRECIATION

Hon. W. N. Chant, Judge E. A. Bence of Saskatchewan and S. H. Clark of Edmonton replied to this toast. Judge Bence thanked Alberta and especially the men around High River for the introduction of Hungarian partridges into Saskatchewan. The introduction of this new game bird resulted also in the revival of the use of pointers and setters the judge stated.

H. L. Wyman gave a short parting message.

Delbert McFarland gave a vocal solo. Tom Gardiner a violin solo and Confusius, "Ten Minutes of Magic." These were appreciated by the delegates.

A motion picture on The Grey Owl's Neighbors and Big Game at Jasper were presented by courtesy of Colin Groff and the publicity branch of the government.

Broomhall

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—The weather is becoming dry in parts of India. The Punjab especially is affected and parts of the united provinces. Elsewhere, seeding conditions are favorable. Northwest India is the heaviest wheat producing section, with generally 18,000,000 acres put to wheat in the Punjab and the united provinces. The early monsoon was favorable in most sections of the country, with the exception of the Punjab, but this is the late district where seeding is not general until December, and there is still time for the seeding rains. Nevertheless it will be very necessary to watch conditions here.

There is no improvement in shipments from North America. Europe seems content to buy from hand to mouth, being assured that southern hemisphere production will be sufficient to supply a large part of the demand until their own crops are gathered again next summer.

Today's Markets

At New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Although some of the rails, utilities, metals and specialties were in fair favor in today's stock market, a number of the recent leaders backed up under realizing.

Such reactionary tendencies as were in evidence were attributed mainly to technical influences. The losers gave ground grudgingly, however, and the activity was not pronounced. The close was irregular. Transfers approximated 2,050,000 shares.

At Toronto—Industrials

TORONTO, Oct. 28.—Profit-taking at the tail end of the session today reduced gains on the industrial section of the Toronto Exchange. A point advance for distillers-Seagrams was cut to ¼ and gains in the oils, foods and miscellaneous groups were reduced or erased. Trading bulked in the liquors, oils, Ford A, C.P.R., Fanny Faver and Dominion Stores.

At Toronto—Mines

TORONTO, Oct. 28.—Mining share listings of the Toronto Stock Exchange held to a fairly steady price level today. There were a few strong spots along with points of minor weakness, the base metals as a whole displaying more stability than the golds. Silver issues were inclined to firm up moderately.

Falconbridge at 4.50 was up about 15 cents. Noranda weakened slightly and Hudson Bay ruled higher for broken lots.

At Montreal

MONTREAL, Oct. 28. — Montreal Stock Exchange held an irregular appearance today as many early gains were wiped out in late selling. Gains and losses were about evenly divided.

A few power stocks showed strength with Shawinigan advancing ¾ to 18⅞ and Canadian Hydro Electric preferred 1 at 44. Montreal Power and B.C. Power were both narrowly higher, while Quebec Power lost ⅜ at 14¼.

WHEAT PRICES SLUMP AGAIN

WINNIPEG, Oct. 28.—Wheat prices slumped anew on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today as the world-wide downward trend of the past few days continued. Values closed 1⅞-2 cents lower, October at 85, November 85⅛, December 85¼ and May 89¼-⅜ cents.

Prices were weak from the start, with Bearishness the dominant note in market sentiment. Scattered selling sufficed to send the October future farther under the Canadian wheat board 87½-cent minimum price for No. 1 northern wheat.

Scattered, unestimated export sales of Canadian wheat were insufficient to stem the decline. All outside markets registered price reductions.

GERMANY BUILDS MIGHTY WAR MACHINE---AND EYES LOST COLONIES

Der Fuehrer | Terror Of the Deep | Big Guns Unmuzzled | Monsters In Steel | Death On Wings

Picked German troops of the guard of honor reviewed by Adolf Hitler at Nuremberg.

A trim U-boat riding the waves, in recent German naval maneuvres, bringing back grim memories of 1916. Building of a powerful submarine fleet by Germany has spread alarm in Europe.

A challenge to air bombers, this super deadly anti-aircraft gun guns with which Germany is prepared to repel plane attacks, at which the crew works swiftly, one of the hundreds of modern

A fleet of steel monsters on imposing parade, displaying the might of Germany in tanks, as they thundered in long lines before 200,000 spectators, including war lords of the Reich.

Prowess of Germany's new air force demonstrated as a bombing squadron scores direct hits.

Threat Of Split Among Rivals Over Ethiopia Is Balm To Hitler

By MILTON BRONNER

LONDON, Oct. 28—Now that Germany, in defiance of treaties, has rebuilt her war machine, her eyes turn covetously to the rich African territories taken from her as a part of the price of defeat in the World War.

Her Reichfuehrer, Adolf Hitler, is probably the only head of a European state who is getting a good laugh out of the Italo-Ethiopian imbroglio. No matter what happens, it's "Heads-I-win, tails-I-win" for Hitler.

For every word spoken in favor of the Italian thesis for colonial expansion and accepted is equally a word for Germany. And from that fact, Germany draws deep satisfaction although she has seen the League Council make the ominous decision to proceed under Article XV of the League covenant opening the path to international economic or military measures against Italy if she goes to war with Ethiopia.

Germany's lost colonies in Africa and countries to which they were awarded after the World War.

Germany's silence in the crisis has been eloquent. She has watched with elation as Italy has forced England and France to recognize that, confined to a small peninsula, with few mineral resources and a teeming population, Italy must have colonies both for raw materials and for room in which her people can settle.

HUNGERS FOR COLONIES

The Reich, too, has a very large population settled upon a comparatively small territory. Italy's hunger for colonies is excelled by that of Germany only.

For a long time the soft pedal was put on Germany's colonial ambitions. Under the republic there existed various colonial organizations which, in a small way, sought to keep alive Germans' interest in their former colonies taken away from them under the Treaty of Versailles.

When Hitler came to power, a damper was put on these colonial organizations, for Hitler in his book had indicated he would rather fight to get eastern European territory than former colonies. This of course meant the Baltic states and Russian territory.

But Russia's growing military power, backed by her growing industrial power, has convinced Hitler and the Reichswehr that a Russian adventure might not be so easy.

Hence suddenly the colonial organizations have become downright vocal. Meetings have been held, lectures have been given, stressing to Germans the importance of Germany's former possessions in Africa. Some of Hitler's own lieutenants have latterly in bald terms said that, just as Germany had asserted and secured her right to equality in arms, so she must have equality in colonies.

The Nazis have their eyes upon two in particular — Tanganyika, which used to be German East Africa, and South-West Africa, a mandate of the Dominion of South Africa, which used to be German West Africa.

What is going on in Germany has had its repercussion in Africa. It became so bad last year in South-West Africa that the dominion authorities banned the Nazi movement, which had grown like wild fire among Germans who remained in the colony.

STARTLING MOVE BARED

A commission at present sitting in Windhoek, capital of South-West Africa, has revealed some things which have shocked the English and Boers who make up the most of the population of the Dominion of South Africa.

Letters were read showing close relations between the German Nazis in the mandated territory and the Nazi colonial organization in Hamburg. These letters showed that the men in the territory were definitely working for a change in the mandate and were seeking to import Nazi methods into Africa.

Under instructions from Hamburg, the colonists were asked to subscribe to this oath:

"I swear true and faithful allegiance to Adolf Hitler and unconditional obedience to him and to those leaders appointed over me by him."

One letter from a territorial Nazi leader to a group out in the back country said:

"Our object is to drum Hitler's program into Germans and fight for it, so that South-West Africa may become German again in the shortest possible time, and to proclaim at all times our attachment to Germany, calling everyone a traitor and treating him as such who does not think and act in the same way."

SEEK TO LIFT YOKE

In all the letters it was emphasized that they must work in secret and without the mandatory power knowing anything about it. Wherever possible, anti-Semitism was to be fostered.

In the meantime, however, they demand that 40 per cent of the members of the legislative council to Tanganyika shall be Germans; admission of Germans to all governing bodies; adoption of German as the second official language of the colony; creation for the German population of special bureaus of commercial information; and maintenance of a permanent contact between the German colonists and official German institutions.

PETE KNIGHT AT GOTHAM RODEO STEALS SHOW

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 — Pete Knight, star cowboy of Crossfield, Alta. last night added the bronco-busting championships of the Madison Square Garden rodeo to the galaxy of honors that already rest in his tack-box.

When the curtain fell on the wild west contest Knight had 3407 points in the saddle riding class. He was closely pressed by another Albertan, Herman Linder of Cardston, who amassed 3.466 points during the fortnight's competition.

Bareback bronk riding honors went to the veteran Pete Grubb of Idaho, with 1,907 points.

Waldo Ross of Warner, Alta., was a casualty of the final performance. A bronk named Yellow Stone unseated him and he landed in the tanbark on the back of his head. A doctor was called into the case but extent of the cow-puncher's injuries were not immediately ascertained.

Spanish Scandal Over Gambling Hits Government

MADRID, Oct. 28—Dissolution of parliament and convocation of new elections were seen Sunday as possible outgrowths of a scandal in which eight prominent members of the Radical party were allegedly connected with the opening of a gambling casino.

A usually reliable source told the Associated Press that Foreign Minister Alejandro Lerroux and Minister of Education Juan Jose Rocha had presented their resignations, which have been accepted, effective after a special parliament session Monday night.

Firemen Injured

MOOSE JAW, Oct. 28—One member of the Moose Jaw fire department, Gordon Higson, is in a serious condition in hospital and several others suffered less severely as a result of gas fumes emanating from a fire which damaged the Saskatchewan Registered Seed Pool plant Saturday.

Another fireman, George W. Barnes suffered back injuries when he became partially overcome by the fumes and fell down the basement steps. Higson's condition is bad and his physician has forbidden any visitors. Loss from the fire was not heavy.

DAFOE SAYS U.S. IS CAST IN BIG ROLE

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., Oct. 28. —The United States must play the international part her "premier position in the world marked out for her," John W. Dafoe, editor of the Winnipeg Free Press, told the Y.M.C.A.'s international convention here Saturday night, "or a crisis ending in catastrophe is inescapable."

He said the United States' part might not involve entrance into the League of Nations, but it will require a large measure of co-operation. The experience of the past 16 years was conclusive that none of the plans for international co-operation could be made to work when the course of the United States was not calculable."

Mr. Dafoe said he had noted "moods of isolation" in Canada as well as in the United States, and "in crisis which promised to result from Italy's defiance of the League" would test this spirit in both countries.

THIRTY-SEVEN CANADIANS SWEEP-RICH

Irish Hospitals Lottery Drawing Is Still Proceeding

DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Oct. 28—Thirty-seven Canadians today held tickets on horses in the Irish hospitals sweepstake on the Cambridge. The draw was made Saturday from a prize fund totalling £1,321,987 ($6,490,356.17) and the exact amount each of the fortunate ones receives will be determined next Wednesday when the Cambridgeshire is run at Newmarket, England.

Holders of tickets on the winning horse will receive £30,000 ($147,300). Second place holders will get £15,000 ($73,650) and third place £10,000 ($49,100).

NO NAMES GIVEN

Owing to lotteries legislation in Canada, the names of the Canadian ticket-holders were not made public. They were identified only by noms-de-plume.

The draw will be resumed today with 10 residual prizes and 1,300 consolation ones to come out of the draw. Officials hope to complete the work Monday but there is a possibility it may be necessary to continue till Tuesday.

ALL HORSES PAY

Each drawer of a horse will get $1,825 regardless of how the horse finishes. The residual prizes are about $10,792 each and 1,300 consolation prizes $491 apiece.

The draw was based on a list of 97 horses, but since many of them will not run, holders of tickets on non-runners will receive a prize equivalent to holders of tickets on horses which do not place.

She Escapes Bath Of Acid

A threat to mar the beauty of Charlotte Tindle, above, pretty Philadelphia debutante, with acid unless she paid $500 led to the arrest of Joe Fernandez after his seizure by federal agents. Dressed as a woman, he attempted to take a box planted to trap the writer of the extortion note.

BIG ITALIAN DRIVE DEFERRED FOR FEW DAYS

MASSAUA, Eritrea, Oct. 28—Gen. Pietro Badoglio, Italian chief of staff, sailed for Italy last night. It was understood he had decided to delay for a few days the launching of Italy's big offensive on the north and southern Ethiopian fronts.

A Reuters dispatch from Asmara said Gen. Badoglio had a final conference with the Italian high commissioner for Eritrea, Gen. Emilio de Bono, and decided no advance would take place until the Italian authorities were certain it could occur with minimum loss of life.

Gen. Badoglio's orders were understood to have been that nothing must be left to chance. Consequently it is believed here several days will elapse before the attack, planned in detail by the two Italian leaders, will be launched.

Old Pictures Had Hidden Treasure

SUNBARY, Pa., Oct. 28—Warren H. Walfe paid 10 cents for a picture at an auction sale and took it home to replace its broken glas. He found $93 hidden in the frame.

Ralph B. Foltz tore apart the 10 cent collection he got and found $12.

CLERIC URGES COURTS AGREE ON MARRIAGE

MONTREAL, Oct. 28—A plea for legislation "so that the mischief done to social order and stability by the annulment of marriages duly performed with the requirements of the civil law may be repaired," was made here last night by Ven. Archdeacon A. P. Gower-Rees, rector of St. George's Anglican church.

Preaching before his congregation, Archdeacon Gower-Rees discussed at length recent superior court judgments in which it was held that marriages of two Roman Catholics before a Protestant clergyman were not valid.

"Until there is unanimity among the judiciary on the question of marriage laws and the grounds upon which annulment may be granted," stated the clergyman, "until there is even agreement among Christians as to the conception of the marriage ideal and whether marriage is indissoluble or dissoluble under certain circumstances, so long will scandals arising out of too frequently recurring annulment suits in this province continue." Archdeacon Gower-Rees mentioned that while certain judges had granted annulments in mixed marriage cases others had upheld the validity of these marriages.

Giant Clipper For Sea Service At Miami, Fla.

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 28—Pan American airways' giant clipper destined for trans-Pacific service, arrived to undergo final tests here Sunday. Piloting the 25-ton flying boat on its seven-hour, 1,200-mile hop from Baltimore was Capt. Edwin C. Musick.

Capt. Musick and his crew of four expect to start immediate shakedown flights to get the newest and biggest of the clipper ships ready for the start of regular air-mail service from California to China, scheduled next month.

The ship is capable of carrying 75 passengers and crew of six on normal flights, and 24 passengers and one ton of mail for 2,400 miles. Sleeping accommodations are provided for 18 persons.

Ailing Woman Still Yawns

VICTORIA, Oct. 28.—"Condition unchanged" was the report from hospital Sunday as Mrs. P. E. Wakelin began her eighth week of yawning. The 42-year-old mother of three children re-entered hospital Saturday for oxygen treatment, the effects of which will not be known for another day or two.

Mrs. Wakelin began yawning September 8, the attacks occurring every four or five seconds, whether awake, asleep or while eating. She has been placed on various diets, been given sedatives and has had fluid drawn from her spine in futile attempts to arrest the ailment. X-ray examinations have disclosed no organic trouble and medical men are now resorting to the oxygen treatment.
